"Purity is the Handmaiden of Progress."

The New Lucan Dairy

LUCAN Dairy progress is due to an early recognition of the importance of a pure milk supply. Long before any other dairy in Ireland realised this the Lucan Dairy had adopted the highest standards of quality and set itself to provide milk of exceptional richness and purity.

In spite of the cost of maintaining an elaborate and expensive plant for pasteurising the milk and sterilising all vessels with which it came into contact, Lucan Dairy Milk was sold at the usual retail prices.

This policy succeeded to such an extent that the Lucan Dairy was soon the biggest and best known dairy in Dublin. Its yellow vans and shops were recognised as symbols of purity, and the demand for its products increased steadily year by year.

The efforts of modern health authorities have recently impressed the public consciousness to such good effect that the Lucan Dairy has found it necessary to increase its output of pure pasteurised milk to meet the needs of an ever-widening circle of customers.

A wonderful new dairy has been built at great cost opposite the old premises in Parkgate street. It is planned on modern lines which ensure maximum light, ventilation and cleanliness. It is equipped with the most modern and expensive pasteurising and retarding plant. Lucan Dairy Milk will in future be sold in bottles which are sterilised, filled and stoppered by ingenious machinery. All handling of the product has been eliminated, so that you may get this rich, pasteurised milk in all its perfect purity.

A fleet of delivery vans will distribute Lucan Dairy Bottled Milk in future. Stop the driver and ask him to deliver Lucan Dairy Bottled Milk to you for a week or two so that you may judge its richness and flavour for yourself. You will never go back to other milk again.

SEASONABLE HINTS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—

This is the month for pests. Keep them out by constant watchfulness. Use creosote on the woodwork, spray with some good disinfectant, and scatter carbolic powder about the floors. Go around every evening before the hens go to roost and search the nests. If there are broodies in them remove them and coop them or place them in vacant runs. If eggs are found that they have been lying on use them for home use, so that you will be able to discover if they have been spoiled for eating. As they may have been sat on all day, they should not be sold, and any eggs discovered in stolen nests should also be used at home.

This is a good time to look out for cheap lots of fowls. Many sell off their surplus stock to make room, and from reliable breeders many bargains can often be had. If you want pullets you may, perhaps, get them better later on when breeders are thinning down their stocks.

THE SOWING.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Gardening Correspondent says:—

Probably the most important point in securing a successful bit of early spring Cabbage is timing the seed sowing, and, as remarked, the 20th of July, or round about that date, is ideal, but we do not advise anything but a day or so earlier, lest our estimable little friend mistake its vocation in life and go on and off for premature flowering. Half an ounce of seed well manupulated will yield sufficient plants for quite a good break for planting out early in September, and if previously transplanted grand plants going off without a check, and getting well established ere growth is arrested by winter. However, the question of the moment is sowing the seeds by making, say, a four foot wide bed, and double that length, on clean, good-hearted soil, such as that from which early potatoes are lifted, frequent watering, and netting from the finch family being a sine qua non.

KILLED IN INVALID CHAIR.

ALLEGATIONS REJECTED.

The inquest on James George Farrow, of Hornchurch, which was adjourned for the attendance of Major-General F. A. Wilson, who was in a car which, it was alleged, was responsible for Farrow's death, was ended at Romford yesterday. The jury returned a verdict of accidental death, exonerated the driver of the car (Private Poore) from blame, and said that everything that could be done was done to help the dead man.

Farrow, an old age pensioner, was in an invalid chair when the accident happened.

A doctor gave evidence yesterday that after Farrow had been admitted to hospital General Wilson inquired after him and rang up the next morning.

Alfred James Brand, a railway employé, said that after hearing the crash he saw Farrow on the road. A stranger was there and an officer and a private soldier crossed from the other side of the road to where Farrow lay. The soldier undid his collar. The officer remained until Farrow was removed, and seemed very concerned.

Major-General Wilson, giving evidence, said that the accident happened when his car skidded. It was a deliberate lie to say that no one in the car went to the man's assistance. He thought that the man's back might be injured, and, therefore, he was not put in the car. To move Mr. Farrow except on a stretcher would, he thought, be criminal.

The Coroner, referring to an allegation made at the previous hearing, that neither the driver nor the officer in the car gave help, said that he could not believe such a thing was possible, and that was why he adjourned the inquiry. Everyone must regret that such a statement had been made.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

TONE AND COMMENT.

DUBLIN WEAKER.

GUINNESS UNDER BEST.

There was a quiet and more or less stagnant market on 'Change, and the fact that dealings could be entered on for the "new" account seemed to make no difference so far by broadening the number of orders in the hands of the brokers, while in some cases sale pressure was continued, if not emphasised, among Rails, Guinness, and Industrials. Money market conditions and fears still caused realisations in War Loan 5 p.c. Stock, but Government National Loans were, if anything, firmer. National Bank shares were an exceptionally firm market. Cables and Wireless issues remain weak. Among Rails, Great Northern Pref. relapsed on a small transaction, and Great Southern Ord. weakened, while the Pref.-Ord issues held firm. Tramways were idle, but Parent Trust Def. were bid for on the chairman's statement at the annual meeting, held at the close of the week. These shares in to-day's price include the final 2s. 6d. of the 20 p.c. dividend paid for the year. Guinness Ord. opened better, and then eased back in sympathy with prevailing weakness in other directions. British-American Tobacco shares fell back smartly on the Russo-Chinese embroglio. Courtaulds shares displayed fresh weakness on a renewal of selling pressure, and even Coats Ord., Imperial Chemicals, and Margarine shares were without support, except at concessions.

LONDON QUIET.

GILT-EDGED EASE FURTHER.

Quiet conditions prevailed in most sections of the London Stock Markets yesterday, fresh business being on an extremely small scale, while members' attention was mainly directed to the arrangement of the carryover. During the early hours a small accumulation of week-end orders imparted an air of activity to certain sections, but these were soon transacted, and markets presented a neglected appearance. Lack of interest, coupled with fears of further gold withdrawals, tended to depress Gilt-edged securities still further. Idle conditions again prevailed in Foreign Government Stocks, but, apart from Chinese issues, which were again marked lower, the final levels were much the same as before. Home Rails adopted a waiting attitude pending the interim dividend announcements, which are due this week. Among Colonial and Foreign Rails, Central Argentines and B.A.G.S. and Western were also put lower. Following the marking down at the week-end, American Rails stiffened the turn in most directions.

The volume of business transacted in the Industrial sections as a whole remained on a quiet scale, and prices moved irregularly. Artsilks and Textiles displayed an uncertain appearance, while Tobaccos and Match issues were marked off. Breweries, however, strengthened here and there, and the International group reflected the strength of New York, some appreciable improvements being scored. Cable and Wireless issues were rather offered, and the Miscellaneous descriptions were mainly easier. Mines as a whole were quiet, but several firm features were evident.

A COMPLEX MONETARY SITUATION.

It is unusually difficult to gauge the probable course of the money market in the near future because of the complicated influences at work. There appears to be little doubt that of late France has used part of her sterling credits for the purpose of transferring gold from London to Paris. Previously she had produced a decidedly weak sterling exchange rate by accumulating dollars, in case it became necessary to pay America a commercial debt of approximately £80,000,000 due on August 1. That payment was subject to the ratification of the Mellon-Berenger debt settlement, and, as this agreement has been recognised by the French Chamber, and will almost certainly be accepted by the Senate, this payment will not be made, but will form part of the French Government's debt to the United States. It had been anticipated that, with the ratification, France would dispose of part of the large amount of dollars accumulated, and it may be that yesterday's rather sharp improvement in the New York exchange was due to a commencement or anticipation of this procedure. But presumably France might sell dollars and still take gold from London, and, if she is determined to do this, it is argued that a rise in our Bank rate to 6 or 6½ per cent. would not check the movement.

WHAT MIGHT HAPPEN.

Germany's ability to draw gold from us has been due to borrowing, and it was, perhaps, significant that bills were offered rather freely on German account yesterday in London. Because of the possibility of a higher bank rate next Thursday, or later on, market quotations have got a little nearer to, and are now little below, the official level. This in itself is a somewhat disturbing feature; for a further rise would mean that the Bank of England became the cheapest medium for discounting bills. In that case so many bills would be offered there for discount that, in self defence, the Bank of England would be compelled to put up its rate. It is believed that the directors do not wish to take that step, but in certain circumstances it could only be avoided by the bank effecting purchases of bills in the open market, thus weakening the outside rate, apart from what that institution regards as a safe gold holding with the present official minimum.

INTERNATIONAL TEA.

Shareholders of International Tea Company's Stores, Ltd., yesterday agreed to a resolution increasing the capital to £2,350,000 by the creation of an additional 1,000,000 shares of 5s. each. In the course of his remarks, Mr. Guy Collier, who presided, said that the contract which they had entered into since the last meeting with one of their former competitors, John Quality, Ltd., did not mean that the company had made any financial investment. The nature of the arrangement was that the International had been appointed buying agents and managers on a commission basis for a term of years. Another matter of interest had been commented on from time to time, but, as the pourparlers with a catering firm failed to fructify, it would be improper to make any comment on them, except to say that the terms sought by the other party did not appeal to their directors.

BRITISH CONTROL OF GAUMONT APPROVED.

An extraordinary general meeting of the Gaumont British Picture Corporation was held in London for the purpose of considering resolutions to alter the articles of association of the company. The resolution was designed to ensure the continuity of control in the hands of British shareholders. The Chairman, Colonel A. C. Bromhead, said, contingent upon the passing of the resolutions now submitted, the board had arranged the sale to Messrs. Ostrer Brothers of the 1,316,571 unissued Ordinary 10s. shares in the corporation at the price of 24s. 6d. The sale of such a large block of shares in one transaction and at a price above that ruling in the market made it improbable that the purchase was for the purpose of offering them to the public, and he understood it was the intention to keep these shares in one block. That position raised the question of the possibility of the majority and control of the corporation becoming centralised in the hands of one group.

There can be no reasonable objection, the Chairman continued, to aliens owning shares, and it is very far from the intention of the board to discourage the introduction of foreign money into the industries of this country or into the cinema business, but in a corporation such as our own there were grounds which make it very undesirable that British control should be lost. Proxies received from shareholders in support of the resolutions amounted to the substantial figure of 2,232,462, and he moved that the resolutions be approved and passed. The resolutions were carried unanimously.

INDUSTRIAL MARKET.

Brokers found little encouragement in dealing with the morning's mail and wire orders, for on balance they proved to be instructions to sell. Arrangements for the carry-over presented no difficulty. The general rate was 7-8 per cent., but several special rates were in force. Anglo-Atlantics and Colographs were fixed on the basis of 8-9 per cent.; Dunlops, Chemicals and Bats were contangoed at 6-7 per cent.; Courtaulds were arranged at 6½-7½; while Celanese were done at 5-6 per cent. Hydro-Electrics and International Holdings were bright features in an otherwise dull market. The former changed hands in large numbers, and left off only a shade below the best of the day at 53⅞, while the latter closed 1⅛ to the good at 10⅞. Brazilian Tractions eased further to 60½, and Canadian Cars shed 3 points to 137. Cable B finished 1 off at 83, while the A were finally unaltered at 85, and the Preference climbed to 95. Canadian Marconis left off ⅛ lower at 2⅛. Radio Corporation were dull at 84. Associated Electrics yielded 6d. to 44s. 9d. After opening firm at 90s. 9d. Margarine Unions were scaled down to 89s., at which they registered a loss of 1s. 6d. The Unies closed also lower at 92s. 9d. Aerated Bread again changed hands freely, but eased to 1 5/16. In the Brewery department, Allsopps were marked up 6d. to 26s., Bass, Ratcliff lost the turn at 3 1/16, and South African Prefces. shed 9d. to 16s. 9d.

Bats came on offer, and were levelled to 6, and Carreras A fell ¼ to 13¼. Imps also sagged to 4 25/32.

Among Rayon issues there was quite a good trading in Courtaulds. Sellers predominated, however, and in the later dealings were marked down sharply to 3 11/32. Branstons Ords. proved quiet around 11s. 3d., but the Defd. strengthened to 6s. 6d.; and while British Celanese Ord. shed 1/16 to 1 5/16, the Second Prefs. were marked up to 17s. Celanese of America improved to 6⅝, but Snias were dull at 17s. 6d.

Textile issues—Sewing Cottons fell 1/16 to 2 7/16, Bleachers 1/16 to 1 11/32 and Bradford Dyers that much to 1 31/32. Fine Spinners finished 9d. lower at 32s. 6d., while Calico Printers at 22s. 9d. and Amalgamated Cottons at 1s. both eased.

In the Iron and Steel section Bengal Irons proved a firm spot at 16s. 9d. Amalgamated Anthracites were better at 8s. 3d, and International Nickels retreated to 49⅞, after being dealt in up to 50½. Among Motors Dennis Bros. were finally 1/16 lower at 2⅜. Columbia Graphophones left off with a loss of ¼ at 13½. H.M.V. were also unwanted, and declined by ⅜ to 7⅝, while Vocalions looked finished at 15/16. Metropoles were again a trifle better at 3s. 9d. In the Land and Investment Department, Associated Anglo-Atlantic Ordinaries proved fairly steady in the neighbouhood of 23s. 6d. Cement shares were slightly easier. Royal Mails Ord. Stock proved very firm after commencing at 58½, and was dealt in over 60 on several occasions, but the 5 p.c. Prefs. proved a dull spot, and was scaled down to 55. Cunards and Furness Withys both held, but Elder-Dempster 6 p.c. Prefs. again fell to 13s. 3d., and British Oil Shipping were marked down 9d. to 16s. 9d. Dunlops proved a dull spot, and on a moderate amount of selling yielded 6d. to 16s. 9d.

RECENT ISSUE DEALINGS.

Metafitters touched 9s. several times during the day, and finished a firm spot at 8s. 6d. Faradex-Seraphone lost 6d. to 9d., and Anglo-Norwegian Holdings at 17s. 3d. were 3d. down. Brownlacs proved steady in the neighbourhood of 7s. 4½d.

OIL SHARES HEAVY.

Business on the first day of the new account in the Oil Share Market showed no signs of any improvement. Monetary conditions and holidays seem to be hitting the market badly. A tendency to weaken was specially apparent during the afternoon, when prices fell out of proportion to the selling pressure. Shares were offered on an unwilling market, there being no desire on the part of professional operators to enter upon commitments. Advices from New York were of an irregular nature, and give no help to dealers on this side. Paris showed slightly more interest than of late, but only as a seller, the Eagle issues being on offer. Mexican Eagles continued to be more depressed than its sister share, although both were marked down.

RUBBER SHARES IDLE.

Once again idle conditions characterised the Rubber Share Market, and, despite the improvement in the quotations of the commodity, share values, where altered, were lower. Actual price movements, however, were few and far between, and, apart from United Sua Betong and Sungei Krian Preference, which were each marked 1s. 3d. lower, were of a trifling character. Quiet conditions ruled in the commodity market, but quotations strengthened appreciably after a dull commencement. Spot and August sold 10 15/16d. to 10 13/16d. per pound, and October to December went from 11 1/16d. to 11⅛d. and 11¼d. per pound. January to March closed firm at 11½d. per pound. London stocks of the raw material show an increase of 129 tons on the week.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

RUBBERS A REDEEMING FEATURE.

Yesterday's Stock Exchange making up prices constitute a somewhat dismal record of movements against holders during the period covered. But the record was relieved by Rubber shares, which, with a few exceptions, have moved in favour of holders, in some cases substantially. In Abaco, Hong Kong and Bukit Lintang there is a rise of ¼ or more, while F.M.S., Jong Landor, and Killinghall show a rise of 1/16, and Alor Pongau, Ayer Kuning, Banteng, Batu Tiga, Bukit Kajang, Buntar, Devitural, and Kalidperoek of ⅛ each, while in numerous other cases there are slighter advances.

WILLIAM BEARDMORE SCHEME AMENDED.

An amended scheme of reorganisation of the capital of William Beardmore and Co. is to be submitted to meetings of the debenture, note, and shareholders on 29th July and 9th August. The "A" Income Debenture stock is to be non-cumulative so long as any of the First Debenture stock is outstanding. The banks and Government will receive "A" Income Debenture stock and 6 per cent. Non-Cumulative First Preference shares, and the noteholders and the Government (for balance of its debt) 6 per cent. Non-Cumulative Second Preference shares. This means a rearrangement of the share and loan capital. Changes in regard to the future management of the company are also proposed.

METROPOLE GRAMOPHONE CO.

There was a good deal of criticism from shareholders at the first annual general meeting of the Metropole Gramophone Co., Ltd., at Winchester House yesterday.

The Marquis of Winchester, speaking of the company's trading loss of £42,589, which the directors proposed to write off, said that shareholders would appreciate that in building up a new industry which was largely technical and competitive, considerable expenditure was necessary.

One shareholder complained that a circular sent out by the board was "misleading."

The Chairman—It was not intended to be.

Another shareholder complained that he had been unable to buy the company's records at London shops. Yet another shareholder was very persistent in inquiring as to the number of shares held by the managing director and the chairman, and, in reply, the latter said that he held 60,000 shares.

The report and accounts were carried by a substantial majority.

LONDON WOOL SALES.

Five catalogues were brought forward at public sales, totalling 9,896 bales, comprising 3,141 New South Wales and Queensland, 2,708 Victorian, 647 West Australian, 541 South Australian, 2,630 New Zealand, 105 Tasmanian, and various sundries. With the termination of the series to-day it was evident that buyers have secured the bulk of their requirements, consequently demand proved quieter and withdrawals still frequent, owing to high selling limits. The small portion sold, however, marked no material change in rates.

LONDON MINING MARKET.

NOURSE MINES IN DEMAND.

A good deal of time and attention was occupied with the final arrangement of the carry-over, but as the accumulation of public orders over the week-end was very small, professionals found little else to occupy their attention. Indeed, after the detail work had been completed, most departments relapsed into a state of inanition. The condition of affairs in the Kaffir department may be gauged by the number of the changes recorded. Paris was doing little, and the Cape confined its attention to one or two of the low-priced descriptions. Nourse Mines were wanted and rose rather sharply to the accompaniment of rumours of good developments. Rhodesians were unable to shake off their lethargy, and, in the absence of fresh demand, prices were inclined to droop during the morning. Closing prices:—

THE IDEAL BOY.

SIR ALFRED BUTT PUTS IMAGINATION FIRST.

Sir Alfred Butt, M.P., yesterday gave his definition of the qualities he would look for in an ideal schoolboy. "I want a boy who has imagination first of all," he observed; "afterwards courage, and, finally, all those qualities that can accept defeat and still make up one's mind to conquer."

Sir Alfred was presenting the prizes at the speech day at Chelsea Town Hall of Emanuel School, Wandsworth Common, of which he is an old boy.

Speaking to the boys who did not receive prizes, he advised—"If you cannot drive the engine, you can still grease the wheels. I was not a particularly bright boy at school. I was just a very ordinary schoolboy."

THE MONEY MARKET.

GOLD WITHDRAWALS.

There was a good demand for loans in Lombard street, borrowers paying 5¼ per cent. in some cases for accommodation over the night. The general charge was 5 per cent., and at the close, when the position became easier, money was obtainable at 4½ per cent.

Fears of a further large amount of gold being withdrawn from the Bank caused discount rates to continue firm, and the fine three months' commercial bill rate was quoted at 5⅜ per cent. to 5 7/16 per cent., four months' were called 5 7/16 to 5½ per cent., and six months' 5½ per cent. to 5 9/16 per cent. The "hot" Treasuries were 5⅜ per cent.

At the Bank of England bar gold to the value of £1,404,904 was sold. It is understood that of this, about £900,000 was on French account, the balance being for Germany. The net efflux to date amounts to £3,698,907. Fresh weakness developed in silver owing to China selling and lack of support. Both the spot and forward prices declined 1/16d. to 24⅜d. and 24 7/16d. per oz. respectively. The market price of gold was unchanged at 84s. 11½d. per fine oz.

The New York exchange finished nearly ¼ up at 4.85 9/16, and Montreal was also appreciably higher at 4.87¼. The improvement in sterling, as quoted in American dollars, was reflected in some of the European currencies, but not those of France or Germany. The French exchange was a trifle lower, and the German rate was again unaltered. Holland, however, moved sharply in favour of this country, the Amsterdam rate rising ⅞ to 12.09⅝. Swedish kroner were noticeably cheaper, and Norway quoted more for sterling. There was also some depreciation in Belgian belgas, Swiss francs, Italian lire, and Austrian schillings. The current American exchange represents the highest closing rate since May 4 last.

DUBLIN CIRCUIT COURT.

CO. DUBLIN LANDS.

FARMER'S ACTION FAILS.

(BEFORE JUDGE DAVITT.)

The case of Michael Monks, farmer, Huntstown, County Dublin, against the Free State Minister for Finance and the Commissioners of Public Works came on for hearing.

The plaintiff claimed £300 for loss and damage through the alleged negligence of the defendants, their servants and agents, in the construction and maintenance of a watercourse through the defendant's lands, whereby the water flowing through the plaintiff's farm was prevented from flowing away, and plaintiff's lands were thereby flooded.

Alternatively the plaintiff claimed £300 for the alleged wrongful obstruction by the defendants, whereby the water flowing through the plaintiff's farm was prevented from flowing away, with the result that plaintiff's land was flooded. Plaintiff also sought an injunction to restrain the defendants from obstructing the said watercourse, or otherwise causing flooding or damage to plaintiff's lands.

Mr. P. Lynch, K.C., with Mr. F. Sherry (instructed by Messrs. Gore and Grimes), appeared for the plaintiff.

Mr. E. J. Kelly (instructed by Mr. P. Cobb, Treasury Solicitor) appeared for the defence.

Plaintiff, in reply to Mr. Lynch, said that his farm was comprised of 180 acres. In 1915 the Collinstown Aerodrome took 16½ acres of the land. At that time there were two open drains, which were closed up, and in their place two pipes were put to carry away the water from the gripes. When the drains were closed all the water came in on his land. Portion of his land was flooded for seven months of the year. In 1922 plaintiff complained to the Ministry, and an Inspector visited the place, and said that he would put a ten-inch pipe in, but nothing was done. In 1923 he sowed eight acres of oats, but could not reap it on account of the floods. For the past six years he was suffering a loss of £50 per year on his crops.

To Mr. Kelly, the witness said that the State lands adjoining also were flooded, but not to the same extent. He admitted sowing the land every year.

William Howard, farmer, also gave evidence of the flooded state of the lands.

At the conclusion of the plaintiff's case Mr. Kelly said that he did not intend to call any evidence, and submitted that no action lay against his clients.

Mr. Lynch, in reply, quoted the case of Wheeler against the Commissioner of Public Works.

JUDGMENT.

The Judge, giving judgment, said he was satisfied that no act of negligence had been proved against the Minister for Finance. In addition, the servants of the Minister were not liable. He also was satisfied that there was no act of negligence proved against the Commissioner of Public Works, or his servants. As the civil bill was framed under negligence, the defendants were in no way responsible, and he would dismiss the claim, and also the injunction application, plaintiff to pay the costs.

THE DUBLIN POOR.

ST. VINCENT DE PAUL SOCIETY'S WORK.

The Rev. John Walsh, C.M., Professor of Philosophy, Irish College, Paris, presided at a general meeting of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, held on Sunday last at the Mansion House.

In the absence of the writer at one of the group meetings of the Society, the Hon. Secretary read a paper on "Work for the Poor," in the course of which it was stated:—Prior to the Emancipation Ceremonies there was talk about the inroads of indifference, Socialism, Bolshevism and other "isms" among the poor of Dublin. Whoever spent a day or two in slumdom towards the end of Emancipation Week and saw the feverish bustle of enthusiasm of the Dublin poor in their efforts to rise to the great occasion could have little doubt as to where lies the stronghold of Catholic faith. Faith, a strong, virile and courageous faith, was one of the characteristics of our Dublin Catholic poor. However much they loved the poor, however, much natural inclinations might urge brothers to help them, the motive underlying all Vincentian work must always be the love of God. In so far as their work was actuated by other motives, so far did it fall short of the high standard which true Vincentians should set before themselves.

DONKEY SHOW IN DUBLIN.

There were 38 entries and keen competition at the show of donkeys held under the auspices of the Dublin Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, at 28 Dartmouth road, Ranelagh, yesterday. Letts) presented the prizes, which were awarded as follow:—

DUBLIN'S WATER SUPPLY.

DURING SIX CENTURIES.

ANCIENT METHODS AND MODERN NEEDS.

(By "T. A. S.")

TO-DAY no spot is of livelier interest to the citizens of Dublin than the reservoir at Roundwood, whence the city derives the bulk of its water supplies. Will this summer's drought, by continuing, reduce those supplies to a dangerous point of scarcity?

The earliest attempt to provide the citizens of Dublin with a convenient supply of water was made in the year 1308, when a three-mile conduit was constructed from Templeogue, on the River Dodder, into the city, where it flowed like an ordinary stream down the main street. From this, leaden pipes, restricted by law to the thickness of a goose quill, conveyed the water into the houses.

In the seventeenth century these leaden pipes were replaced by pipes made of elm wood, which were considered more economical. Pumps and wells, of course, augmented the supply. One celebrated pump stood in the front square of Trinity College. Here for many years, unwary bailiffs who ventured into the College were ducked by the students.

PRIMITIVE FILTRATION.

At the beginning of the eighteenth century, the supply from the River Dodder being somewhat uncertain, two reservoirs were built in the city. Water was taken from the canals into these "basins" (as the citizens called them), where it underwent a rather primitive process of filtration. The Blessington street basin supplied the north side of the city with water from the Royal Canal, while the south side was served by a larger basin (James's street), which was fed by the Grand Canal. Across the centre of each reservoir a bank of sand was placed, and the water was considered to be filtered when it had passed through this obstruction.

Tanks were placed at various points in the district to be supplied, which filled up during the night, and so balanced the heavy day-time demand. It may be remembered that some years ago, during an unusually dry summer, the Corporation published an urgent warning against the wastage of water. To reassure people who might consider the watering of the streets wasteful, all watering carts bore the legend, "Canal water only used." It was from the two city basins that this water was obtained.

DUBLIN STOUT.

Nowadays we scarcely would regard canal water as a desirable beverage. Yet it must be remembered that water from the Grand Canal is in great demand—not only in Dublin, but all over the world—since it is from that source that Messrs. Guinness obtain the water used in manufacturing their famous stout. In justification of their new advertising "slogan" that "Guinness is good for you!" we hasten to add that the water is taken from the canal at the fifth and eighth locks, some miles from the city, where it is quite pure, and that it is most carefully filtered before it is converted into stout.

The water obtained from the basins was very much harder than the present supply, and the pipes invariably became thickly coated with lime. This trouble was greatly lessened when the softer water was introduced. In the year 1870 the city analyst estimated that the introduction of the softer water effected for the citizens a considerable economy in the cost of soap—equivalent to at least £10,000 per annum. The precedent of calculating this saving was, very appropriately, established in Scotland, when the canny citizens of Glasgow estimated that a change in the source of their supply saved them a sum of £36,000 a year on soap.

THE VARTRY SUPPLY.

The abandonment of the canal supply was brought about in Dublin by the steady growth of the city. In the year 1860 the Corporation decided that the supply was unsatisfactory and inadequate, and it was decided to impound the water of the River Vartry, near Roundwood—about twenty-five miles from the city. The reservoir was fed by the streams of a "catchment area" of 13,000 acres, as well as by the River Vartry. The district was considered to be very suitable, because of the sparse population—stated to average only thirty per square mile. This compares very favourably with the Thames area, from which part of London gets its supply. There the population is three hundred people per square mile.

The actual reservoir occupied 409 acres, and had a storage capacity of 2,400,000,000 gallons. This was distributed through the city by a network of pipes, totalling 107 miles in length. During subsequent years this network was extended as the suburbs expanded, until the demand threatened to exceed the supply. In 1907 the Corporation decided to construct an additional reservoir at Roundwood, having about half the capacity of the existing reservoir. The combined cost of the two reservoirs and the supplemental work was about a million pounds.

From Roundwood, five hundred feet above the highest point in the city, two mains convey the water via the Glen of the Downs to Stillorgan, where there are "service" reservoirs, whose total capacity is about 170,000,000 gallons—equivalent to twelve days' supply for the city. From Stillorgan two 27-inch mains run to Leeson Street Bridge, whence the water is distributed over the network of pipes throughout the city.

MODERN METHODS IN CORK.

It is generally realised that the average consumption of water per head of population is steadily increasing, and in American cities—where it is claimed that a very high standard of living exists—the figure is nearly double that of the British consumption. This fact, coupled with the rapid growth of the city, makes it probable that Dublin will seek some new source of water supply during the next ten years. Mechanical and chemical filtration of water have reached such a stage of perfection nowadays that, if an auxiliary water supply were needed, it could be obtained from the Liffey at no great distance from the city.

A convincing illustration of the efficiency of modern methods of filtration is provided by a test that was made some years ago in the swimming baths of a Lancashire town. The same water was used during nineteen consecutive weeks, being purified at intervals by mechanical filtration, aëration, and sterilisation by chlorine. At the end of that time it was tested and declared to be remarkably pure. Similar methods are at present in use for the Cork city supply, and no complaints are made against the river water when it is treated in this way.

Do you suffer from Headaches?

Most headaches are caused by defective eyes. Often the eyesight is good, but eye-strain results from a small optical defect which can be corrected by wearing suitable glasses supplied by a qualified optician.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY.

The Theatre in Connaught : An Ulster Magistrate : A Topsy-Turvy Poet. Nature Study : The Great Gamble : Captain Marryat. "Hot News" : Killiney Strand.

Killiney.

I visited Killiney strand a few days ago, when the heat of the weather had reached its height. The beach presented a wonderful sight. There was hardly standing room from one end to the other. Yet it seems extraordinary that this popular seaside resort is not given more consideration by the local council. There is a total inadequateness in the facilities at the disposal of visitors. People of both sexes are compelled to undress on the strand if they desire to bathe; and, needless to say, this state of affairs does not earn the approval of the public. There are also no shelters from occasional showers of rain, and the unfortunate seaside pleasure-seekers are compelled to suffer the drawbacks of the out-of-doors.

"Bridge Parties."

Now is the time of year when the Dublin suburban bridges over the Dodder, the Tolka and the two canals gather festoons of contemplative and loquacious humanity. These bridges are a magnet for the evening gossipers. Here the elder statesmen discuss high politics with proper gravity, what time a later generation argues fiercely about the performances of bipeds and quadrupeds in the realm of sport. The summer twilight has deepened into dusk and the last trams are hurtling along to their depôts before the parapets are deserted.

In the sunny afternoons it is mostly the elders of the village who brood over the flowing water, pulling meditative pipes and exchanging monosyllables—to all seeming as if Dublin and the twentieth century were remote in time and space. The rustic simplicity of the old-time villages lingers about these bridges on a drowsy summer day, and even the trams do not altogether shatter the illusion. Only on the Liffey bridges is modernity completely triumphant.

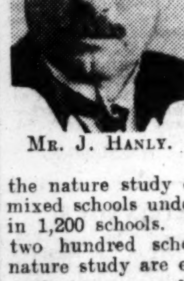
"Hot News."

The sound pictures of the Catholic Emancipation ceremonies in Phœnix Park, which were taken and recorded by Pathé Sound Gazette, are already showing in over 500 picture houses in the United States. They are proving an enormous draw, and the popular opinion is that they are the most wonderful achievement yet in topical sound photography. It is curious to reflect that it is barely a month since the ceremonies took place, and, yet, people all over America were able to see and hear the proceedings in the nearest "movie palace" less than three weeks afterwards.

This speed is almost frightening, but quite understandable when one knows the American reverence for "hot news"—in other words, the very latest. In fact, their passion for news amounts to an obsession, and their daily papers are the breath of life to them. The American Sunday papers are the most impressive things one can imagine. Pages and pages of murders, divorces, and suicides are followed by positive volumes of sport, politics, photographs, gossip and finance. Not one page, but several, are devoted to every subject, and this, combined with massive advertisements, ought to make the stoutest heart quail; but not so the average American. He buys at least three of these monstrosities of journalism every Sunday, and reads them from cover to cover, with the utmost devotion.

To satisfy this craving for the latest news it is, therefore, obvious that the topical films must also be absolutely up-to-date, and no expense is spared to make them so. Soon the only romantic subject for the best-seller will be the theft of an important reel of film news, in place of the usual "papers of international importance." Sherlock Holmes must come back; for Hollywood has need of him.

Nature Study in the Schools.



Mr. J. Hanly.

Mr. Joseph Hanly, organising inspector of rural science in the schools of the Free State, must feel well satisfied with the progress of his subject; for I see it stated in the report of the Department of Education that the rural science course is taught now in four hundred and twenty schools, all of which have demonstration plots. The nature study course for boys and for mixed schools under a master is taught in five hundred and eighty schools, while the nature study course for girls, or for mixed schools under a mistress, is taught in 1,200 schools. Thus, in two thousand two hundred schools rural science and nature study are established.

This measure of progress owes much to Mr. Hanly's energy and zeal. Last year he addressed county conferences in fourteen counties, with an average attendance of fifty-two teachers.

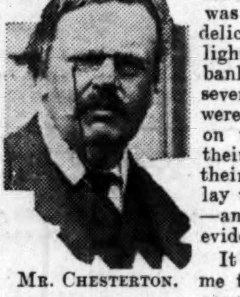
Killeen and Dunsany.

Anyone who has visited Killeen and Dunsany castles will be struck by the similarity between the ruined churches on each estate. The story goes that in pre-Reformation days, when the two properties were in the hands of two old ladies of the Plunkett family, there was only one church—the one at Killeen. Here Mass was celebrated every morning, the two relatives attending side by side. But my Lady Dunsany evidently had an unpunctual strain in her composition; for she invariably delayed the ceremony by not appearing up to time. One morning the chaplain had the peculiar audacity to start without her. Becoming exceedingly wrath, she returned to her own domain, and very shortly had an exact replica of the Killeen church built in her own grounds, except that hers was a better specimen, being a yard larger both in length and breadth.

A Gamble.

A correspondent writes:—The other day a travelling show of roundabouts, etc., arrived at our country town, and since then the entire juvenile population is to be found in its vicinity. Sunday is the busy day, when all the young farmers come in to try their strength in heaving a hammer and making the bell ring, or (excruciating thought) seeing how long they can stand an electric current through their systems. The shooting booth, where balls bob on jets of water for a target, is another great attraction, and most of these country lads are very good shots. The womenfolk frequent the fortune-teller and the penny-in-the-slot gambling machines. One young matron, who was rocking a perambulator with one hand and putting pennies in a machine with the other, complained to the man that she had gambled away all her money. "Ah, well, ma'am," said the philosopher condolingly, "sure, isn't marriage a greater gamble?"

A Poet Upside Down.



Mr. Chesterton.

I remember a curious sight which I witnessed a few years ago when walking in the neighbourhood of the Royal Canal. It was nearing the hour of sunset, and the country lying towards the West was bathed in delicate shades of light. On a green bank near the canal several young men were lying. They lay on their backs, and their feet were above their heads. As they lay thus, they talked—and talked with evident excitement.

It was explained to me that they were a company of artists. They were lying in that queer attitude because, by that means, the sunset hues could be seen to advantage. It was explained to me that artists often resort to this means of getting a vivid view of scenery; and, if you try it, you will see that they have reason.

With interest, therefore, I learn that this notion is the basis of a new book by Mr. G. K. Chesterton, "The Poet and the Lunatics," which Messrs. Cassell will publish this week. The leading character is a poet, who also is an artist and a detective. He gets his solutions by following the artistic rule of viewing a scene upside down in order to see it aright. Very characteristic! The author, by the way, began life by being trained for art; but all of Mr. Chesterton's art that ever we see is in his annual collaboration with Mr. Hilaire Belloc, whose novels he illustrates.

An Irish Producer.

A correspondent writes:—Many a time I have heard the Irish Players speak with reverence of that fine producer, J. Augustus Keogh, but it was only yesterday I saw and spoke to him for the first time.

Mr. Keogh is home on vacation from the Boston Repertory Theatre, where he is producer with H. Jewitt; but he has been by no means idle during his hard-earned holiday. Next Thursday night the State Theatre Guild, a company of players organised and produced by Mr. Keogh, open at the Municipal Theatre, Kingstown, with Stanley Houghton's play, "The Younger Generation." An interesting and varied programme has been arranged for the coming season.

"I hope to use the work of the best normal playwrights," said Mr. Keogh, in the course of conversation, "among them Galsworthy, Shaw, Masefield and Worral. Our next production is to be Masefield's 'Tragedy of Nan,' and after that, for contrast, 'Eliza comes to Stay,' followed by 'Ann,' by Leckmere Worral. The cast, of course, consists of experienced professionals, and in the autumn, during my absence in America, a producer is coming over from one of the English repertory theatres to take over my work.

G.B.S. and "the Abbey."

"Did you ever hear how I earned the title of 'The Man Who Saved the Abbey Theatre'"? continued Mr. Keogh. "Well, in June, 1916, I happened to be in Dublin, and, of course, found my way down to the Abbey Theatre, where the first thing that met my eye was a large board with the words 'To Let' written on it, and the whole place silent and deserted. To make a long story short, I took the theatre 'on spec' for a week, collected a cast—of which one of the members was Fred O'Donovan—and wrote to Bernard Shaw asking his permission to produce 'Candida.' His reply was characteristic:

"'Dear Keogh, surely there are enough slums in Dublin to justify 'Widowers' Houses'"?

"I took his advice and put it on, and by the second night I knew we were all right. I rapidly put on several more Shaw plays, among them 'The Devil's Disciple,' and Mrs. Shaw afterwards came over to see our production of 'Arms and the Man.' Her visit was followed by a letter from G.B.S. himself giving me his permission to put on any play he had written. Later on I produced the first performance of 'The Whiteheaded Boy,' and from that time the Abbey Theatre never looked back.

"I started with the Compton Comedy Company with Edward Compton," Mr. Keogh told me. "Fay and Viola, his daughters, were then in the cast also, and then I went into Miss Horniman's theatre in Manchester. At that time Sybil Thorndyke was there, and Basil Dean. Later I produced for the Moody-Manners Opera Company, and then stage-managed for Vedrenne and Eadie at the Royalty, London, going on to Sir Frank Benson's Drury Lane season after that. Then followed my time at the Abbey, and now I am settled in Boston with the Repertory Theatre. Eventually I hope to end my days in Ireland."

Captain Marryat.

I see that Mr. Brimley Johnson, who has recently been sponsoring for us what is really a critical collection of passages illustrative of the history of the novel, has now turned his attention to an edition of Captain Frederick Marryat's novels, and with it another of the secondary stars of the Victorians may swim into our ken. Marryat has been rather neglected, possibly owing to association with the Smollett school, in whose style of rather overstrong autobiography "Frank Mildmay" was written. Smollett always tended to rely on personal experience (Thackeray said he had not invention) and that is exhaustible. Marryat, however, did not: there may be originals for Peter Simple and Jack Easy, but they are worked into a story-telling milieu and are not left in the slightly inconsequent and dilatory venue of life. He tells his tale, too, in the direct natural manner of Defoe, throwing into his vessel a mighty ballast of fun, mostly farce, but sometimes, as in the scenes with Smallsole, bordering on true comedy. Marryat had the heart of a boy, and my boyhood certainly enjoyed him. Anyone who has managed to salve from the rocks of sophistication any of that ancient spirit of his youth will find that he can read the old sea dog's work again with exactly the same thrill.

London's Ulster Magistrate.

"Every marriage is a perilous adventure, and false pride is the common cause of domestic discord," says Mr. J. A. R. Cairns, B.L., the London Metropolitan Magistrate, who has devoted much time to the study of the causes which are mainly responsible for the failure of so many of the present-day marriages. Mr. Cairns is an Ulsterman, having been born in Belfast in 1875. He received his early education at the Royal Belfast Academical Institution, afterwards passing through Queen's University. He went to England, entered the Presbyterian Ministry, and for nine years was pastor at Alnwick, near Northumberland. He took up the study of law, was called to the English Bar in 1908, and worked up a big practice in the North-Eastern circuit. At one period he held the appointment of counsel to the Postmaster-General, and also acted as Crown Counsel.

The Drama in Galway.

A friend in Galway tells me that the plays provided there in Gaelic last week were highly successful, and by far surpassed the performances that are given every winter in Dublin, thanks to the perfect harmony of players and audience. Two comedies, "The Sham Doctor," and "Biters Bitten"—both of which have been seen in Dublin—were given, and: "It was not acting at all. It was as real as if you were in the place the stage represented. In the second play, for instance, the two old women tapped their snuff-boxes and offered snuff to each other at intervals, with natural pleasure."

My correspondent says: "It would be invidious to write of the different parts, where all were excellent, but Mr. Michael Thornton in the first play, and Mr. O'Direáin—an Aran Islander of 6 feet 6 inches—in the second, were especially good, acting with infectious zest. The scenery was charming. Thus the doors and casements in the cottage scenes were peacock colour where the walls were cream, and lovely cretonnes were at the windows. The background was a Paul Henryish picture of mountain and cottages. The stage screen has fine Celtic scroll work in gold, done by Mr. MacLiammóir."

Northern Viscount.

Lord Massereene and Ferrard, who has resigned from the Senate and the private secretaryship to the Prime Minister of Northern Ireland, is the twelfth Viscount.

Lord Massereene.

He was born in 1873, held a commission in the 17th Lancers, and served in the South African War, in which he was twice wounded, and gained the D.S.O. in 1900. In the European War he served with the North Irish Horse, and has filled responsible offices in County Antrim and has taken an active part in Ulster politics since the establishment of the Northern Parliament nine years ago. He owns about 16,000 acres in Ireland, where he has two seats, both of them in beautiful country. One is Antrim Castle, near Lough Neagh, and the other is Oriel Temple, Collon, County Louth, referred to several times in the "Diary." In Antrim Castle among the prized heirlooms are Sir Thomas Lawrence's portrait of the last Speaker of the old Irish House of Commons, the Right Hon. John Foster; a portrait of the first Lord Massereene, Sir John Clotworthy, shields bearing the arms of the Speakers of the Irish Commons from Sir John Davies, in 1613, to the Union, and pictures by Lely, Godfrey Kneller and Gainsborough.

More Seats Please.

It would be a great benefit to the general public if the Dublin City Commissioners put more seats round the town. Numbers of people may be seen at Eden quay waiting for the Belfast 'bus. The long-distance traveller certainly does not want to stand more than is necessary. Several seats, with advantage, might be put near O'Connell Bridge; for it is the starting point of many 'buses. Another place where many people bound for suburbia are to be found standing is at the top of Grafton street. In this hot weather more seats would be particularly welcome.

QUIDNUNC.

THEATRE ROYAL.

VARIETY PROGRAMME.

An interesting variety programme is being presented to the patrons of the Theatre Royal, Dublin, this week. There is not a dull item in it. One of the laughter-creating scenes is that in which the Rego Twins figure. As a fact, they are not twins, for one is a diminutive policeman, and the other is a big, burly, would-be burglar. The latter terrifies the trembling agent of the law, and the whole act is most amusing. Paul Galley, a Continental musical comedian, produces some remarkable effects on instruments which are not often to be seen in this country.

Dorrie Dene is here once again. Her breezy style and her singing and acting justify the allusion to her in the programme as an "indescribable" comedienne. She was given a flattering reception. Charles Ancaster is a quaint and unique juggler, whose work was much appreciated.

Karl Hermes, the sculptor, presents a series of statuesque groups, which he calls "Les Diodattis," representing Music, the Favourite (Egyptian style), the Rendezvous (Dutch), Idyll (Modern), Diana Hunting (Grecian), and The Neighbour's Apple Tree (1850 style).

Lilian Edwards and Doreen Dalton gave a nice act of vocal harmony, and Nelly Wigley is a dainty artist whose singing is highly pleasing. Sid and Max Harrison are clever dancers. Jack Grieve is very interesting in a song descriptive of his experience in the prize ring, and Eric Peacock, a one-armed man, performs surprising feats on a motor cycle.

OLYMPIA THEATRE.

DRAMA FOR A CHANGE.

"The Coastguard's Daughter," a play in six scenes, was presented in a very capable manner by Mr. Frank H. Fortescue's Company at the Olympia Theatre, Dublin, last night.

Lieutenant Marchant, an officer in the Royal Navy, and a married man, finds himself in financial difficulties, and to gain a fortune of £10,000 he goes through the form of marriage with a coastguard officer's only daughter, to whom the money has been left by a wealthy uncle. The second marriage is kept a secret for a time, but just before Marchant's departure for a foreign station his wife, a French lady, appears on the scene. Audrey Melrose, the daughter of the coastguard, then learns that she has gone through the form of marriage with another woman's husband. The situations which follow are interesting and sad, but interspersed with much humour.

Miss Dora Marriott, as the coastguard's daughter, gave a successful presentation of the title rôle, and Miss Gladys Phillips was good as the vivacious French wife, who, on the understanding that portion of the £10,000 would find its way into her pocket, accepted the situation very philosophically. Mr. Frank Rothwell, as her husband, gave an effective presentation of a very unpopular part; while Mr. Paul Ash, an able seaman on Lieutenant Marchant's ship, in love with Audrey, filled his part with considerable vigour. Curtis Edwards, as the coastguard, and Miss Hilda Stanley, as the maid, gave suitable support to the principals.

BEAM SERVICE PROFITS.

The British Postmaster-General has informed Mr. Bowen that up to the 31st March, 1929, the Post Office Beam Services had earned gross receipts amounting to £813,100, at a cost of £538,850. Since 1st April, 1928, the services have been worked by the Post Office, as agent for Imperial and International Communications Company, Ltd.

The business section of the small town of Wainwright, 125 miles east of Edmonton, Alberta, has been destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at $750,000.—(Reuter.)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE REFORMATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—It is all to the good when a preacher, as the Rev. P. J. Gannon did yesterday at Mellifont, encourages a congregation of Irish Roman Catholics to acquaint themselves with the history of antiquity, of the Middle Ages, of the sixteenth century, and of the succeeding centuries. The preacher spoke of "that long and strong tradition of orthodoxy going back to Patrick." When the question is thus raised whether the present Roman Catholic Church in Ireland, or the present Church of Ireland, maintains the faith brought to Ireland by St Patrick, surely the thing anyone who wishes to satisfy himself on such a point should do is to read St. Patrick's own genuine writings. His "Confession" and "Letter to Coroticus" can be purchased for a few pence in an English translation, done by Dr. Newport J. D. White, at 37 Dawson street, Dublin. It is not what the Rev. P. J. Gannon says about St. Patrick, or what I may say about him, that settles the question whether the Church of Rome, or the Church of Ireland, has continuity of doctrine with St. Patrick. It is rather what the saint says in his genuine writings that enables the public to form a right judgment on this important matter.

Similarly, to judge of the Reformation, read the history of the Middle Ages; study the lives of the Popes, of saints like St. Bernard and St. Malachy; read about the rise of the Religious Orders; study the history of the Crusades and the persecutions of the Jews in the Middle Ages; read what Roman Catholic historians, like Lord Acton and Dr. John Ignatius von Dollinger, have written about the Papacy previous to the Reformation. Then one is in a position to judge whether the Rev. P. J. Gannon's estimate of the Reformation in Ireland is in keeping with the facts of history or is not. Cardinal Manning said that the appeal to history is both a treason and a heresy. It is gratifying to members of the Reformed Churches in Ireland to know that attention is being given by scholars, who are members of the Roman Catholic Church in Ireland, to the history of St. Patrick, St. Bernard, St. Malachy, the Popes, Henry VIII., Queen Elizabeth and the Republican Cromwell. Members of the Reformed Churches have nothing to fear from the fullest investigation of the facts of history. Their familiarity with the history of the Old and New Testaments, through the constant reading of lessons in the vernacular from Holy Scripture at public worship, has given them a sense of the value of history that is part of the contribution they are able to make to the well-being of the whole community.

History is full of ironies. They are to be found in the Fourth Gospel. The Rev. P. J. Gannon refers to one. May I refer to another? Dr. Dollinger, in his address on the struggle of Germany with the Papacy under the Emperor Ludwig the Bavarian ("Studies of European History," p. 130), says: "So, as one might say, by the irony of history it came to pass that in the Emperor Ludwig's time the rôles of Emperor and Pope were reversed. The Emperor . . . came forward as the champion of Papal infallibility . . . The Pope meanwhile had issued a bull in which he solemnly condemned the teaching of his predecessor Nicolas III. as heretical—no doubt, with many excuses and palliations for him personally—but dealing all the more pitilessly with the partisans of his teaching, whom he handed over to the Courts of the Inquisition for having seriously advocated Papal infallibility." Pope John XXII. condemned the doctrine of Papal infallibility as a heresy, and gave the minorities, who taught this doctrine, over to the Inquisition. Dr. Dollinger says: "His successors did the same, and within the space of about eighty years 114 martyrs to the doctrine of Papal infallibility and the rule of poverty perished at the stake in Italy and the South of France, whilst a still larger number were tortured to death in the fearful dungeons of their order or in those of the Inquisition."

This particular irony of history took place long before the sixteenth century. To describe the Reformation as a "wild and Bolshevistic upheaval," or as a "betrayal of God and man," may be pulpit eloquence, but some explanation other than the victory of evil, after sixteen centuries of Christianity, is necessary to account for the success of a movement which led countless numbers of Roman Catholics in Europe, in England and in Ireland to cease to hold communion with the Church of Rome and to recover continuity of faith and order, of doctrine and worship, with primitive Christianity, through the establishment of national, self-governing Churches.—Yours, etc.,

MOSES IN EGYPT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I was much interested in one of your leading articles, headed "Moses in Egypt," in last Friday's Irish Times. Your writer mentions "the history of the Jews in Egypt." May I point out that, according to Scripture, the word should be "Israelites," not "Jews"? At that time only the "House of Israel" was in existence, and the "House of Judah" had not then sprung into being. Up to the year 975 B.C. the Israelitish people existed as one nation. In that year, on the death of Solomon, it became divided into two. The Northern nation became known as the "Kingdom of Israel," and the Southern nation, consisting of Judah and Benjamin, with members of the priestly tribe of Levi, was known as the "Kingdom of Judah." The capital of the Northern nation was Samaria and that of the Southern kingdom was Jerusalem.

There was not a solitary Jew, known as such, in the world earlier than six hundred years after the death of Moses, or about fifteen hundred years after Abraham was born. There were Hebrews and Israelites long before that time, but no Jews. Abraham and Isaac were Hebrews, but they were neither Israelites nor Jews. The origin of the word "Jew," or "Judaite," arose in connection with the revolt of the Ten Tribes under Jeroboam after the death of Solomon. Up to the time of the revolt the Twelve Tribes were one kingdom—Israel—though there had been more or less unfriendliness between the north and south tribes (I. Sam. xi. 8, II. Sam. xx. 1, and I. Kings xii., 16). After this revolt the southern kingdom became known as "Jews" or "Judaites," which simply means (to this day) a descendant of the man Judah, and then a member of the House of Judah.

The first time where the word "Jew" appears in Scripture is in II. Kings xvi. 6. The people of both kingdoms were Hebrews and Israelites, but only the people of the south kingdom were Jews, and then only in the latter part of their history. They each had their own Kings. They went into captivity at different times and to different places, many miles apart, and never in Bible history met again. A careful study of Ezra and Nehemiah will prove this. Israel succumbed to her idolatry, and was finally carried off to captivity in Assyria by Shalmaneser about 721 B.C. Judah continued as a kingdom till about 585 B.C., and was carried off then by Nebuchadnezzar into Babylon. The Kingdom of Israel lasted 254 years, and that of Judah lasted 387 years. Josephus, who was a loyal Jew, is authentic and clear on the subject.—Yours, etc.,

LOST WEALTH IN WOOD.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Mr. Fitzpatrick's letter, which appeared in your issue to-day, outlines an interesting scheme for increasing the number of trees in the Free State, but unfortunately he omits one important detail. How are the trees to be protected, and by whom, against rabbits, hares, goats, asses, sheep and cattle? The planting of trees is one of the simplest operations in the world; protecting them for a period of from ten to twenty years is one of the most difficult, unless constant care is exercised and expense incurred in fencing, netting, etc., by the actual owner of the land on which they stand. County councils have adopted schemes from time to time to encourage farmers to plant trees, but, for all trees thus planted and surviving to-day, a still larger number had been cut, mutilated or destroyed, chiefly because the occupier of the land has no particular respect for, or interest in, them.

In your leading article of last week you advocated farmers visiting Belgium to study trees in connection with agriculture. Any farmer doing this would find the roadsides bordered by elms, poplars and other shade-producing species, but these trees are planted and protected by the highway authorities, and not by the farmers. In this country the same or corresponding authorities are frequently concerned with issuing and enforcing regulations which lead, not to roadside trees being preserved, but to their destruction or mutilation, while the Post Office and Shannon power authorities are equally energetic in the same direction. The average farmer is usually only too ready to make these regulations the excuse for neglecting all trees on his land, and, until some widespread public spirit is raised on the question of tree production, it is almost useless for voluntary organisations to attempt such schemes as that proposed by your correspondent, however good their intentions may be.—Yours, etc.,

IN THE NORTHERN CAPITAL.

A Political Grievance : No Distinctions for Art, Education, or Commerce : The Spread of Temperance : Motor Car and Hydroplane Races : Cookstown's Underground Reservoir.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Monday.

A MILD sensation was caused in Belfast by the publication of Lord Dufferin's decision to resign his position as Speaker of the Northern Senate, as it seems that the news was not to be officially disclosed until the beginning of the autumn session in November next. There is thus quite a flutter of excitement in high places, as it is feared that a wrong impression may be created in the public mind through the incident, as there have been rumours of trouble within the party recently. Interviewed in London regarding the matter the other day, Lord Dufferin said that there was no political significance whatever in his resignation, and that it could not be connected in any way with "some little differences within the party" which were mentioned to him.

Lord Dufferin agreed with the suggestion that his resignation, following so closely upon the announcement of Lord Massereene's withdrawal from political life in the North, was likely to give credence to the rumour in circulation relative to "trouble within the party," and said that for this reason he regretted the leakage of information. Lord Dufferin states further that he has resigned from the Speakership so that he may take an active part in the ordinary business of the Senate, which he could not do while presiding over its deliberations.

Nevertheless, there is trouble, accentuated by resentment, within the party, and in the clubs and other places it finds expression. The distribution of distinctions for "political services," while the arts, education, commerce and industry have been quietly ignored, has been the cause of severe criticism.

PROGRESS OF TEMPERANCE.

There has been silence in the temperance camp for some time past, due probably to the holiday season, but the reformers may take courage from the fact that the cause they represent is still progressing steadily. The peaceful state of the province has been commented upon by the Judges of Assize, and during the week Lord Justice Best, at Armagh, congratulated the Grand Jury on the considerable decrease of drunkenness in the county. They would all be delighted to hear that, whatever the cause might be, he said; and everyone will endorse his complimentary references to the good people of Armagh. The same story has been told all over the Six Counties. The Minister for Finance has referred to it from time to time, pointing out the remarkable reduction in the consumption of alcoholic liquors with the passage of the years; and, apart from occasional drinking bouts in some of the border areas on Sundays, the province is a model in its observance of temperance principles.

All this has been obtained by wise legislation and the gradual introduction of reforms, together with the high prices charged for strong drink and the general common sense of the people themselves. This better outlook upon social life and customs is common to all sections of the community so far as the North is concerned. The benefits of moderation in all things are taught in the schools, and the call of sport, the claims of education, and considerations of health and economy are among the most potent factors which are emptying the public-houses.

MENUS FOR MOTORISTS.

The great international motor car race which is to be held over some of the finest roads in County Down next month has given rise to many interesting discussions, but these generally have been connected with ways and means, the provision of grand stands, the safety of the course, and so forth. Last year's fixture was a great success from the spectacular point of view, and an immense multitude of spectators, estimated at about a quarter of a million, was successfully catered for, but in some instances it seems that hot weather conditions were not sufficiently considered in the menu. Reference was made to this at a meeting of the Race and Finance Committee of the Ulster Automobile Club in Belfast during the week. Complaint was made that competitors who stopped at hotels prior to last year's event were not given sufficient vegetables, and it was urged that this defect should be remedied on the present occasion.

Mr. Harry Ferguson, one of the principal promoters of the big race, who drew attention to the omission, said that a number of drivers had told him that there was an inadequate supply of vegetables, and these were greatly missed. A piquant discussion followed. The chairman mentioned that he had plenty of lettuces going to waste at home, and the drivers could have them if they wished, while other members offered to supply cabbages and every other kind of greenstuff that was desired.

Vegetarians will be interested in this testimony to the value of their convictions; for it appears to indicate that steadiness, nerve and endurance are helped by Nature's abundance in the kitchen garden. There will be no scarcity for the drivers when they arrive a few weeks hence.

HYDROPLANE RACING.

A few days after the international motor-car fixture we are to have a hydroplane race on the upper pond of the Belfast Waterworks, which for many years have been disused as a source of supply to the city and are now reserved for swimming, the sailing of large model yachts and other recreations. The races will be under the auspices of the Ulster Hydroplane Association, which organised a successful fixture on the River Bann last year, and events have been arranged for a ten-miles scratch contest, the winners to take part subsequently in a twenty-five miles handicap. A record entry is expected. Several of the famous drivers in the big motor-car race, who are also "speed boat" devotees, have been invited to bring over their boats, and Mr. Kaye Don will be one of the starters.

The pond is not of very extensive dimensions, but it is sufficiently large to enable the pilots to display their skill, and there should be thrills in plenty. A course of 1,100 yards in the circuit has been selected, and it should provide spectacular effects for the onlookers. The waterworks are picturesquely situated on the Antrim road, with Cave Hill in the near distance, and as the races are to be held on the weekly half-holiday, they should attract many thousands of people, more particularly as the entire proceeds of admission are to be devoted to the funds of the Royal Victoria Hospital and the Mater Infirmorum Hospital, the great Protestant and Roman Catholic institutions of the North.

THE IRISH SOCIETY.

This week representatives of the Irish Society are visiting Northern Ireland, and in Londonderry there will be a dinner in their honour, while another interesting ceremony will be the presentation of a mayoral chain of office to the Coleraine Urban Council to celebrate the new status of the town.

The Irish Society was incorporated centuries ago as "the Governor and assistants of the new plantation in Ulster, within the realm of Ireland." In 1609 the citizens of London obtained possession of the towns of Derry and Coleraine and adjoining lands, sixty acres out of every 1,000 being assigned for church lands.

The Common Council of London undertook to expend £20,000 on the reclamation of the property, and elected for its management a body of twenty-six, who in 1613 were incorporated as the Irish Society, and retained possession of the two towns, the remainder of the property being divided between twelve of the great Livery companies of London. Their estates were sequestrated by James I., and in 1637 the Charter of the Irish Society was cancelled. Cromwell restored the Society to its former position, and Charles II., at the Restoration, granted it a new charter and confirmed the companies in their estates.

It may be mentioned also that the Protestant Cathedral in Derry was completed from the design of Sir John Vanbrugh in 1633 at a cost of £4,000, contributed by the City of London, and was enlarged and restored in 1887. The spire was added in 1778 and rebuilt in 1802. It will thus be seen that the visit of the Irish Society to Londonderry and Coleraine has historic associations of very great interest, and is an event of more than ordinary importance.

WELCOME RAINFALL.

The fears that have been expressed regarding a water famine in the North have been greatly modified by the heavy rainstorm which swept over Belfast and the province generally last night, and the local Water Commissioners are rejoicing at the promise of fuller supplies. A review of the position, which was published by the Belfast News-Letter during the week-end, gave details of the condition of reservoirs in all the principal towns of the Six Counties, which indicated that, while a few towns—notably Cookstown, which has tapped a huge underground reservoir—have almost inexhaustible supplies of water, strict economy was essential throughout the greater part of the area. Generally, the seaside resorts are in no way restricted, and many of them are favoured by nature in the source of their supplies.

Nevertheless, every shower of rain is welcomed, and to-day's downpour is certain to be of infinite benefit to the crops, which were suffering from the prolonged drought. The fable of St. Swithin has once more been exploded, and the dry earth has been refreshed.

With regard to Cookstown, it is interesting to note that its supply comes from a large spring at Monotober, some five miles distant from the town, no storage reservoir being found necessary, and nothing seems to make any appreciable difference in the abundance of its flow.

In summing up, it may be said that tourists to the Northern province will find no inconvenience with regard to a plentiful supply of pure water.

"THE PATSY."

BRIGHT COMEDY AT THE GAIETY THEATRE.

When Patricia Harrington risked three dollars as a deposit on a book to teach her "how to be popular" in one lesson she made the best investment of her life. For a time it seemed likely to land her in the police court, but a loving "Pop" saved her from such ignominy. Patricia very ardently desired popularity, to shine in society, to be witty and brilliant, but her sister Grace outshone her every time. Patsy got her book, and began to say things to make her mother feel uneasy. When a young girl says things like "All the world's a stage, and most of the people stage hands," one would conclude either that she had taken one of those inclusive correspondence courses for which America is justly famed or that she had lost her mind. But Patsy knew all the time what she was doing—she was, in fact, a designing minx whose head had not to be opened so that her brains might be seen. In a family where outside opinion counted for so much originality would stand small chance, and, if Grace had not decided to marry Billy Caldwell, Patsy would never have had a chance with Tony Anderson. When, finally, Tony tells her he has "been waiting with a question for five days," she says she has "had the answer ready for five years."

How Bill Harrington peddled "them groceries" in peace and found misery at home makes a background for Patsy. It took Bill twenty-five years to discover that a "good husband" may be the worst kind of husband at times, and that Mrs. Bill required the methods of a sergeant-major to revive her failing affection. The Harrington home is a delight for any audience. While it may account for the prosperity of the United States, it just as certainly accounts for the divorce figures and the criminal tendencies. "Americans will try anything once, except criminals," as Patsy says.

"The Patsy" is one of the brightest comedies seen in Dublin for a long time. If it be as far from drama as Edgar Wallace is from Thomas Hardy, that, perhaps, will help rather than hinder its enjoyment. Laughter ripples through its three acts, so that it is an ideal entertainment for the warm weather. Two classes of persons can laugh at it without restraint—cynics and courting couples; those intermediate classes may laugh at them. No one can prevent laughter at many points of a really wholesome light comedy. Barry Conners is American, and his play carries all the marks of his time and country.

He was excellently served by a fine company, of which Miss Katherine Revner as Patsy was an outstanding personality. In Mr. Philip Lord, Bill Harrington was portrayed most convincingly, and Mrs. Bill found her double in Miss Emma Temple. Grace Harrington gave Miss Madeline Bird the scope which her talents seemed to crave, and Messrs. Brian Royceton and Sidney King made graceful lovers of Billy Caldwell and Tony Anderson.

The play was beautifully staged under the direction of Mr. George D. Parker.

VETERAN MARKSMAN DEAD

EX-SERGEANT R. T. CAIGER.

Ex-Sergeant R. T. Caiger, the veteran Wimbledon and Bisley marksman, died at his home at Mortlake, last night, after a short illness.

Mr. Caiger, who was 88 last November, was absent from this year's Bisley meeting, the first he had missed since the institution of the meeting at Wimbledon Common in 1860, when Queen Victoria fired the first shot. On that occasion he fired for the Queen's Prize.

Gunner J. Bishop, 29th Heavy Battery, stationed at Gibraltar, was found drowned near Europa Point on Sunday. The dead man, who had been missing for the past few days, was dressed in uniform.—(Reuter.)

IRISH WOOLLEN INDUSTRY.

SUITABILITY FOR SPECIAL CONDITIONS.

SOME INTERESTING FIGURES.

Speaking at the meeting of the Dublin Rotary Club in Clery's restaurant yesterday, Mr. C. P. McCarthy, M.Com., President of the Society of Incorporated Accountants in Ireland, said that an outstanding feature of the woollen industry was that it is one of the small undertakings, and for this country that feature was one of high economic importance. For the group of mills associated with the recent tariff application the average number of employés per mill in 1926 was 93 persons, and for practically the same group in 1913 the employment figure was 147 per mill. The loom was the productive unit in a mill, and the average number of looms per mill in the Irish group in 1925 was 36. The development of employment in rural areas was, he said, a matter of the highest economic importance to this country, as without such employment we could not expect to stop the flow of emigration.

The woollen industry was a scattered one in this country. There are mills in fourteen of the twenty-six counties, the provincial distribution being seventeen in Munster, fourteen in Leinster, six in Connaught and four in Donegal. These mills could offer employment to a family as a group, and for rural development that was of great importance. In certain areas the mills offered the only source of productive employment. In consequence of the nature of the employment offered by the mills and their location in rural areas, a large number of persons were dependent on each mill operative. In 1925, following a census taken of dependents per operative, they got a figure of 2.65, which was a vitally important figure when assessing the economic value of the woollen industry in the country.

WOOLLENS AND WORSTEDS.

Two main branches of the industry were the woollen and the worsted. Woollen required virgin wool. In the woollen end the yarns were made both from virgin wool and from such wool and admixtures of shoddy or waste. Practically all our mills were equipped for the woollen process, there being only one mill in the country which does not spin.

It had often been asked if mass production was possible in the woollen industry. It was not possible, except in special lines. Mass production involved the setting up of standard cloths. Standards became impossible when they were restricted in their application by changes arising from fashion. For some years past, viewing the production as a whole, the woollen part of it was decreasing and the worsted increasing. For a short time this tendency had ceased, and the reverse process was being witnessed. There was in these matters an undefined periodicity arising from fashion.

Turning to the production records of our mills, Mr. McCarthy said that the highest recorded production was in 1918, when approximately 3¼ million yards were produced, the home demand using 54 per cent. of the quantity. Up to 1920 employment continued fairly constant around 2,800 persons, but as from 1921 to very sharp decreases in employment took place. By 1925 the employment had shrunk to 1,770 persons, and the production to approximately 1,200,000 yards. There was continuous short-time and very grievous unemployment from 1921 to 1929. In 1925 our mills produced less cloth to the whole of their home and foreign trade than they sold in the Irish Free State in 1913. The local demand occupied only 25 per cent. of our productive capacity in 1925.

EFFECT OF TARIFF.

The very curious thing was that our foreign trade had always remained fairly constant, and our English trade had not declined by anything like the decline in the home trade. Since the tariff was imposed some four and a half months ago one mill had increased its production and employment by 87 per cent. compared with the whole of the last pre-tariff year. If that mill were taken as a sample, they might look in the future to setting up in the Irish countryside substantial sources of employment for our work people.

Mr. Charles McGloughlin, moving a vote of thanks, said that Mr. McCarthy had shown the value of the woollen industry from the point of view of employment it would give and the use of tariffs when judiciously imposed.

Mr. W. B. Conyngham, seconding, said that he was glad to see that the Rotary Club was a platform for creating an interest in an industry for which this country was peculiarly suitable. They all looked forward to the day when there would be many more woollen mills in this country making cloths which would find their place in the best markets.

Mr. J. P. McKnight, City Woollen Mills, said that the tariff on woollens had brought a wonderful addition to employment in Ireland, and he hoped that the improvement would last.

The vote of thanks was passed.

Among the visitors were Rotarians Harry Magee, who was described by the President (Mr. F. M. Summerfield) as of Derry, Dublin and Sacramento, California, and Mr. Batavia, of St. Louis, U.S.A.

POSTER ADVERTISING ASSOCIATION.

CONFERENCE AT BELFAST.

The annual conference of the British Poster Advertising Association will be opened at Belfast to-day, and yesterday the delegates were received, with other guests, at a garden party at Hillsborough Castle by the Minister of Commerce (the Right Hon. J. Milne Barbour), on behalf of the Government of Northern Ireland. In the morning many of the delegates from a distance visited Murray's tobacco factory.

This is the fortieth annual conference, and members of the Association are attending from all parts of Great Britain and from the Free State. A civic welcome will be extended this morning by the Lord Mayor of Belfast. An excursion to Newcastle and Warrenpoint has been arranged for to-morrow. Many of the visiting delegates are accompanied by ladies.

SIX COUNTY M.P. REBUKED ON THE BENCH.

When John Meenagh, Linfield street, Dungannon, was, at Dungannon Petty Sessions, fined forty shillings and costs for using "party expressions," Colonel Howard, J.P., who presided, said that he objected to Mr. J. F. Stewart, M.P., J.P., talking across the bench to another magistrate.

Mr. Stewart replied that there was a doubt in the case and the decision was hardly fair. He was giving his opinion on the case presented.

Colonel Howard—You can give your opinion in public if you like, but I will not allow you to talk across the bench or make remarks such as you have made. You are sitting here to administer justice.

The incident closed.

DERRY MOTOR BOAT OVERCROWDED.

At Londonderry Petty Sessions yesterday the Harbour Commissioners prosecuted Thomas Sweeney, owner of a motor ferry-boat, for carrying twenty-eight passengers in a motor-boat which was licensed to carry twelve.

Harbour-Constable McKinley said the defendant told him it was impossible to keep the people off the boat as they were in a hurry to catch a train and rushed him.

The magistrates imposed a fine of 5s., with 10s costs, Mr. Glass, Resident Magistrate, remarking that the ferry-boat men were having a hard time, and the magistrates did not want to be too severe on them.

BELFAST MAN'S DEATH IN DUBLIN.

Mr. M. W. B. Erskine, an accountant in the Provincial Bank of Ireland, Royal avenue, Belfast, died in the Mater Hospital, Dublin, on Saturday from injuries received in a motor accident at Santry, Co. Dublin, while coming to Dublin to attend the Irish International Grand Prix Motor Races in the Phœnix Park. He was a native of Londonderry, where his father was an official of the Provincial Bank.

PRICE OF BREAD IN CORK.

NO IMMEDIATE PROSPECT OF INCREASE.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

CORK, Monday.

Householders in Cork will be relieved to learn that there is no immediate prospect of any increase being made in the price of bread here.

This comes as reassuring news following the alarms raised by the upward trend of wheat prices during the past few months, which, with the resultant increase in the price of flour, caused a corresponding increase in the price of bread in many centres.

A director of one of the largest bakery firms in Cork informed me to-day that, if there was any tendency towards raising the price of bread, he would have been approached before this by the remaining master bakers in the city.

"In the absence of such communication," he added, "I can only assume that their stocks of flour have been secured at the lower rates operating last month. Until they are forced to replenish their stocks at the present price, no increase in the price of bread seems indicated."

The principal of one large flour milling firm was unable to hold out any prospect of a fall in the market at present. "The latest cables show that the wheat market remains firm," he said, "and, as the position is apparently created as the result of a huge gamble, it would be impossible to foretell future events."

The present price of bread in Cork is 9½d. per 4lb. loaf, with an additional ½d. for delivery, or ½d. cheaper than the increased price in Dublin.

COMPULSORY IRISH.

BISHOP OF GALWAY'S VIEW.

Speaking at the Connacht Feis, Galway, last Sunday, the Most Rev. Dr. O'Doherty, Roman Catholic Bishop of Galway, said:—"There is, no doubt, a small minority opposed to the development of the Irish language. They tell you in honeyed tones they have no objection to the private study of Irish; they tell you in honeyed tones Irish is beautiful in itself, but they want no compulsion. That was not the tune of their forefathers when they forced the English language upon the Irish people. That would not be their own tune to-day, I am convinced, if they had any longer the power to keep the English language as the spoken language of Ireland. . . .

THE UNIVERSITIES.

"There are people among ourselves who have made themselves conspicuous recently by stating that while Irish is the language and should be the language of the home, of the farmer and shopkeeper, it must be left at the doors of the university—that Irish is not good enough, not developed enough, to be introduced into the university halls. Irish, forsooth, has no technical terms. You must go to English or French or German universities after a few years, it is stated, for these higher intellectual studies which would not then be found in Ireland.

"Andybody who knows anything about university work, about scientific work, knows that these terms are taken in a large part not from English, French or German or Russian, but from Greek. And if these terms can be brought into the universities in England and France and Germany why not bring them, if necessary, into the Irish universities too? We shall not be cut off from world culture because when our young medical men and our engineers and other professional men have learned the elementary and advanced portions of their work in Irish, they will read English, too, and French and other languages and they will not be cut off from world culture.

"But the main thing is that from top to bottom, from the lowliest cot in Connemara to the highest position in the land, after a few years—they must be given a certain time—every man in these positions must be an Irish speaker. Time is required and time will be given, but the ideal must be reached and that in as short a time as possible."

GAELTACHT PROBLEM.

Referring to the Gaeltacht, the Bishop said:—"It is a difficult problem, but I think it can be solved if every party, apart from politics and party considerations, put their backs into it and tried to work out a solution of that problem. It is not a party problem; it is not a local problem. It is too big for a party; it is too big for a county. It is a national problem, and only on national lines can it be solved."

INSURANCE CARDS UNSTAMPED.

STRABANE MAN'S OMISSION FOR SEVEN YEARS.

At Strabane Petty Sessions yesterday, before Captain Gosselin, the Ministry of Labour were complainants in twenty-five summonses against Francis McMenamin, Main street, Strabane, for failure to stamp the National Health and Unemployment cards of four employés. The amount claimed was £123 1s. 4d.

Mr. Edward Clark, for defendant, pleaded guilty, and said that the defendant had agreed to pay.

The Ministry Inspector stated that the defendant had stamped no cards since 1922, and had the use of the money for seven years.

The magistrates imposed a fine of 1d. in each case, with £4 6s. Court costs, and 1s. expenses in each case, on condition that the defendant paid £40 forthwith. They directed that the balance be spread over a period of twelve months.

POTATO DISEASE.

THE RESTRICTIONS IN NORTH LOUTH.

An important communication dealing with the position in Cooley (Louth), where thousands of tons of potatoes have been unsaleable and where prices have fallen as low as 12s. 6d. per ton, was read at the meeting of the Louth Agricultural Committee in Dundalk yesterday.

The Free State Department of Agriculture pointed out that the measures taken for the control of the black scab disease were for the purpose of protecting the country's potato industry as a whole. The restrictions which the Department had found necessary to impose on the infected areas had resulted in limiting the presence of the disease to two relatively small districts, with the result that the Free State could be said to be relatively free from black scab as compared with Great Britain and Northern Ireland. The communication continued:—

"This has an important bearing on the Department's programme for development in the production in the Free State of seed potatoes, for the growing of which large areas in the country are well suited, and for which in the home and export markets there is a large and increasing demand. The successful development of the seed potato trade and the extension of the export trade in table potatoes is only possible provided a clean bill of health is maintained throughout the country. The restrictions in North Louth are no more stringent than those in similar circumstances in Northern Ireland, Scotland, and in Continental countries.

"I have to add that the Department is not prepared to consider the payment of compensation to potato growers. The price obtained for potatoes by Cooley growers represents their value on the market for surplus potatoes."

The letter added that there were better facilities for the shipping of potatoes from Cooley than from most other areas, and stated that no good purpose would be served by having a deputation from the Committee, as suggested.

The Chairman (Mr. McGahon) said that they were never going to do any good by having long-range firing of this kind, and he suggested that, during the Parliamentary recess, they should ask Mr. Hogan to come down personally to the area and see things for himself.

An invitation was extended to the Free State Minister for Agriculture to visit the district.

The Criminal Appeal Court, London, yesterday dismissed the appeal of James Johnson, sentenced to death at Newcastle for murdering his wife.

YESTERDAY'S CASES IN THE COURTS.

ESTATE OF LATE LORD IVEAGH.

REVENUE COMMISSIONERS' APPEAL.

(BEFORE THE CHIEF JUSTICE, MR. JUSTICE FITZGIBBON AND MR. JUSTICE MURNAGHAN.)

The Revenue Commissioners appealed from a judgment and order of Mr. Justice Sullivan, Mr. Justice Hanna and Hr. Justice O'Byrne, dated March 11 of this year, allowing with costs an appeal by the executors of the late Earl of Iveagh against assessment to income tax and super tax in specified years. The case came before the High Court on a special case stated by the Commissioners Appointed for the Special Purposes of the Income Tax Acts, the main question at issue being the domicile of the late Earl of Iveagh during the years under review.

In their case stated the Commissioners stated that they were not satisfied on the evidence that the late Earl of Iveagh was not ordinarily resident in Saorstat Eireann for the years ended 5th April, 1924, 1925, 1926 and 1927, as alleged. The various sums originally claimed for income tax and super tax in respect of the periods specified amounted to £4,427,000.

In his judgment in the High Court Mr. Justice Sullivan, with whom Mr. Justice Hanna and Mr. Justice O'Byrne concurred, pointed out that it was admitted in evidence that the late Earl's domicile of origin was Irish, and that he retained that domicile till 1890, when he transferred all his business papers, certificates and financial papers from his Irish bank to his London bank.

LANDED PROPERTY.

The total value of his landed property in England was estimated at £1,250,000; and the value of his landed property in Ireland was estimated at £106,000. He never exercised the franchise in Saorstat Eireann; and in legal documents and for business purposes he gave 5 Grosvenor place, London, as his address.

On March 25, 1920, he added, the deceased Earl executed a deed poll, in which he declared that he had for many years wholly abandoned and relinquished his domicile of origin in Ireland, and had adopted England, and intended to continue England until his death, as his only place of domicile.

The Commissioners, the appellants, now applied for an order reversing and discharging as much of the order appealed against as answered the question as to domicile in the negative, answering the question in the affirmative; or, in the alternative, a declaration that there was evidence before the Special Commissioners on which they could find the Earl of Iveagh was domiciled in Saorstat Eireann, and that, accordingly, the Commissioners were not wrong in law in finding as they did; or, in the alternative, that the evidence before the Special Commissioners was not such as should necessarily have satisfied them that the said Earl was not domiciled in Saorstat Eireann in the years of assessment, and that, accordingly, the Commissioners were not wrong in law in finding that the said Earl was domiciled in Saorstat Eireann in the said years. They also sought a declaration that there was evidence before the Commissioners on which they could find that the said Earl was a subject of Saorstat Eireann, and that they were not wrong in law in so finding; and they further applied for an order directing the executors to pay the Revenue Commissioners their costs of the "case stated" and the arguments thereon, and the costs of this appeal.

Mr. McCann, K.C., Mr. Overend, K.C., and Mr. Kelly (instructed by Mr. B. J. Collins, Revenue solicitor) appeared for the appellants, the Commissioners; and Mr. Jellett, K.C., Mr. F. FitzGibbon, K.C., and Mr. Newett (instructed by Messrs. Sutton and Co.) for the respondents, the executors.

Opening the appeal, Mr. McCann explained that the only question their lordships would have to decide in this appeal was simply the question of domicile.

Counsel had not concluded when the Court rose, and the further hearing was adjourned until to-day.

PEOPLE AND PROPERTY.

ATTACHMENT ORDER AGAINST TENANT.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE JOHNSTON.)

In a case of Quinn v. Quinn, which had relation to lands in the neighbourhood of Tallaght, Co. Dublin, that are the subject of Chancery proceedings, a receiver having been appointed in 1913,

Mr. Marnan (instructed by Messrs. Toomey and Barber) applied for an order of attachment against John Kenny for failing to give up possession of a dwelling-house and premises at Kiltalown, Tallaght. Counsel mentioned that his lordship made on order on June 25 that Kenny should deliver up possession to the receiver, and notice to that effect had been served upon him. The receiver stated that when he demanded possession Kenny said that he had no intention of giving up possession of the premises. Counsel added that Kenny had been merely a grazing tenant.

John Kenny attended in court, and, being questioned by the Judge, said that he had been fifteen or sixteen years in the house, and had spent money on repairs, and he thought it was unfair to put him out, as he had no place to go.

Mr. Justice Johnston explained to him that the property was not his. He had been treated considerately, and had remained a very long time in possession. People in this country were entitled to get their own property. He would have to make an order for attachment, but there would be a stay for a month, and Kenny would have time to make other arrangements.

ALLEGED FRUIT RING.

DUBLIN MERCHANTS' ACTION.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE MEREDITH.)

In a case of Messrs. A. Morgan and Son, Ltd., of Little Green street, Dublin, against the Dublin and District Wholesale Fruit Buyers' Association, Ltd., of 116 Grafton street, Dublin, an application was made on behalf of the defendants for an order for the delivery by the plaintiffs of particulars of certain matters referred to in their statement of claim.

The plaintiffs' claim was for an injunction to restrain the defendants from, as alleged, inducing persons not to enter into contracts with the plaintiffs for the sale of fruit and vegetables to them, or inducing persons engaged in the fruit and vegetable trade to break their contracts with the plaintiffs.

The defendants denied that they had induced persons not to enter into contracts with the plaintiffs or had induced persons to break their contracts with them.

The motion was grounded on the affidavit of Mr. James C. Uden, of the Corporation Fruit Markets, who set out the further particulars required, and in the course of a replying affidavit Mr. Gerald Morgan, Little Green street, alleged that the defendants had formed a fruit ring in the Dublin Fruit Market for the purposes of keeping up the prices of fruit, and one of the methods by which they sought to bring about this object was by preventing any person from bringing into Dublin any fruit for sale in the Dublin market, with the exception of one firm, at whose suggestion, or acting under agreement with whom, they originally formed the Association. One of the means adopted was to prevent any person who was in the fruit trade from buying from or selling to the plaintiffs.

Mr. Dockrell, K.C., who, with Mr. Geoghegan, K.C., and Mr. J. H. S. Russell (instructed by Messrs. W. J. Shannon and Co.) appeared for the defendants, said that he never heard such an absurd and ridiculous affidavit made by anyone in answer to a notice of motion for particulars.

Mr. Lynch, K.C., who, with Mr. Rice, K.C., and Mr. W. L. Sainsbury (instructed by Messrs. Gerald Byrne and Co.) appeared for the plaintiffs, opposed the motion.

Mr. Justice Meredith having heard counsel on both sides granted the application.

GUARANTEES FOR MONEY.

CLAIMS BY BANK OF IRELAND.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE O'BYRNE.)

A case was head in which the Governors and Company of the Bank of Ireland were plaintiffs, and James Brady, farmer, Castletown, Rathmoylan, Co. Meath, defendant. It was a claim for £2,176 for the principal and interest stated to be due on foot of a joint and several letter of guarantee for £2,000, made in plaintiffs' favour and signed by the defendant, together with Laurence Daly and Patrick Larkin, Stonestown, dated 20th March, 1922, to secure the debts and liabilities of William Larkin, Castletown.

Evidence of the execution of the letter of guarantee was given by Francis E. Jones, manager of the Trim branch of the bank, who in cross-examination admitted that before the guarantee was signed Brady inquired as to the solvency of the Larkins, and, as well as witness could recollect, he informed him that they were solvent.

James Brady, the defendant, stated that he signed the guarantee on the express representation by Mr. Jones that the bank had a mortgage on the farm of William Larkin at Castletown, and of Patrick Larkin at Dungany, and that these farms would be made available before the bank would have recourse to him or his co-surety, Laurence Daly.

The Court gave judgment for £2,176.

Mr. Denning, K.C., Mr. Phelps, K.C., and Mr. Marnan (instructed by Mr. C. J. Rutherford) appeared for the Bank of Ireland; and Mr. Dickie, K.C., and Mr. James Cawley (instructed by Messrs. Brown and McCann) for the defendant.

A similar action was brought by the Bank of Ireland against Laurence Daly and Patrick Larkin to recover £6,530 2s. 9d., with interest, on foot of two joint and several letters of guarantee dated respectively 20th March, 1922, and 12th March, 1923.

The proceedings were not defended by Patrick Larkin.

Judgment for £6,765 was given against Laurence Daly.

The Bank of Ireland was represented by the same counsel as in the previous case.

Mr. Dickie, K.C., and Mr. Monks (instructed by Mr. J. J. Malone) were for the defendants.

DUBLIN CIRCUIT COURT (CRIMINAL)

DUBLIN GIRL'S MONEY.

FRAUDULENT CONVERSION CHARGE.

(BEFORE JUDGE GLEESON.)

John Hanna pleaded "not guilty" to having fraudulently converted to his own use a sum of £270 entrusted to him by Miss Margaret Spillane for investment. He also pleaded "not guilty" to a charge of larceny.

Mr. Finlay (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) prosecuted; and Mr. Arthur Burne (instructed by Mr. W. G. Armstrong) defended.

Mr. Finlay said that the accused man, alternately with the charge of fraudulent conversion, was charged with stealing the money. The class of larceny in this case was known as larceny by a trick. He thought that the jury could not fail to find that the accused man was guilty of a particularly mean class of crime. He employed Margaret Spillane to run a tobacco shop, she having £270 on deposit receipt in the National Bank. She was foolish enough to ask the accused man some questions as to its investment, and he at once became alert, and said that if she trusted him with the money to invest he would secure for her interest at the rate of £40 per annum; and he, in fact, the day after obtaining the deposit receipt from her paid her the sum of £10 to show how prompt and certain were his promises. That was in May, 1926. Subsequently it became a question of the defendant closing down his business, and she obtained £30 from him. She became anxious about the safety of her life's savings, and she went to the office of the accused man's solicitor, and then it appeared that the money never was invested; the defendant himself stated that he had used it for his own purpose. From that day to this Miss Spillane never obtained back her money, except for a sum of £110 given by way, as it were, of interest, but not, in fact, as a result of investment.

MONEY IN BANK.

Miss Spillane gave evidence bearing out counsel's statement.

Cross-examined by Mr. Burne, witness said that she had come from Galway, and the money had been placed to her credit by her parents. When she entered the accused man's employment she had the £270 in the National Bank.

Questioned about the occasion on which she went to Mr. Armstrong's office for the receipt, she said that she went away without taking the receipt. She transferred the deposit receipt from College Green branch of the National Bank to the Blackrock branch of the same bank.

Mrs. Margaret Moran stated that she went to Mr. Armstrong's office with Miss Spillane. She asked what had been done with Miss Spillane's money, and why a receipt was not given. Defendant said that he took it as a friend to invest it for her. Witness replied that he had treated Miss Spillane very badly. The accused man said that Mr. Armstrong, who was present, was a gentleman of honour and character, with his profession to consider. A few minutes afterwards the accused man said that he used the money himself. Mr. Armstrong suggested that Miss Spillane should take a promisory note for the balance of the money, but witness would not let her accept a note.

In cross-examination witness said that Miss Spillane's solicitor did not think it would have been better to bring a civil action for the recovery of the money instead of bringing the defendant into a criminal Court. He told Miss Spillane to make a complaint to the police if he did not pay the money.

MEDICAL EVIDENCE.

Dr. John McCann, Terenure, was examined for the defence, and stated that in 1927 the accused man's mind practically gave way owing to business worries. In the early part of 1928 the accused man was confined in a mental home on account of financial worries.

What is his mental state now?

Dr. McCann—He has become erratic.

The Judge—Has he any delusions about deposit receipts? (Laughter.)

Dr. McCann—Not that I know of.

Further answering Mr. Burne, the witness said that he would not take the risk to advise putting the accused man on the witness table.

Mr. Finlay—Was not the cause of your sending him to a mental home in 1928 alcohol?—Positively no; it was a contributory cause.

Mr. Burne said that he did not propose to examine his client contrary to his doctor's advice. He said that the accused man met with financial reverses through no fault of his own, and there was a bad crash. He was in a strong financial position when he got this money, and then fell on evil days.

The Judge said that there was no effort made to show that there was any investment of this poor girl's money, and no explanation had been given.

The accused man was found guilty on both counts, and was put back till to-morrow,

REVOLVERS, BOMBS AND AMMUNITION.

DUBLIN YOUNG MAN SENTENCED.

Aidan Sweeney was charged with having, on April 9, at 16 Cadogan road, unlawfully in his possession two bulldog pattern revolvers, two Webley revolvers, one parabellum, two bombs, and sixty-six rounds of ammunition.

When asked to plead the accused man refused to recognise the Court.

Detective Officer Michael Gill gave evidence of having found the arms and ammunition in the defendant's house underneath the stairs. The bulldog revolvers were not in working order, and the accused man, who saw witness finding the revolvers, said: "These are only souvenirs." The Webleys were in perfect working order, and so was the parabellum. The defendant said that he took the responsibility for the stuff.

When being charged and cautioned the defendant said to Superintendent Ennis: "I have nothing further to add; the two small revolvers are out of order."

The Judge asked if the accused man had any certificate entitling him to have this stuff.

The defendant's father said—"My son was carrying out the duties which I taught him. I carried out the duties which my leaders of 1916 taught me, and I am proud to think that a son of mine is doing the same."

Continuing, he said that he got from the Republican Government authority to carry arms, and they had that Republican Government now, although it was not functioning

JUDGE'S COMMENTS.

The Judge, addressing the jury, said that it was very hard to see how the accused man could wish to have in his possession a regular arsenal for any legitimate purpose. If he did want them for any legitimate purpose, he should have provided himself with a certificate. Here they had a young man actually saying that he did not recognise the Court, and at the same time his father was not averse to trying to indulge in a speech.

The Father—To explain the position.

The Judge said that the jury should make up their minds, once and for all, whether or not they were going to administer the law—because the Firearms Act was passed for the protection of every citizen—and say if they did not want the reign of the gun to continue. There was only one conclusion to be arrived at if the jury would act on the evidence. If the attitude of any of them was against acting on the sworn evidence, then he did not know how far off the day might be when jurors would cease to attempt to come to court to discharge the duties of jurors at all. If any juror felt that his sense of duty was so little, apart from regard for his oath—that he would not give effect to the evidence—it would have been a far better thing for him to have said so before taking an oath to administer justice according to the law of the land.

The Judge, continuing, said that he made those observations in consequence of the attempted demonstration in Court. If some people thought that the law was wrong, that was not the place to change it.

The accused man was found guilty, and he was strongly recommended to mercy by the jury.

SENTENCE.

The Judge said that he would be entirely ignoring his duty if he failed to pass sentence of less than two years' imprisonment with hard labour. It was within the power of the proper authority to consider all the circumstances of the case, and if there were any reasons for the exercise of the prerogative of mercy on account of the accused's youth, those circumstances would be fully considered.

As the prisoner was leaving the dock for the cells Madame McBride, Mrs. Despard and the accused man's father shook hands with him, the father saying that he was proud of him, and that he was a true Republican.

PEACEFUL FERMANAGH.

"PRIDE OF PLACE IN NORTHERN IRELAND."

Addressing the Grand Jury at the opening of the Fermanagh Assizes yesterday Mr. Justice Wilson said that he thought the county and themselves were to be congratulated on taking pride of place as the most crimeless county in Northern Ireland.

FRAUD AND FORGERY CHARGES.

There was only one case pending before the Court for trial, a case in which John Feeney, of Castlerea, Co. Roscommon, was alleged to have obtained £450 from the Munster and Leinster Bank under false pretences, and also forged the name of Patrick Donnelly, of Dublin, to a cheque. There was another charge against Feeney: that he forged and uttered the cheque. The total number of cases reported to the police of alleged crimes since last Assizes was only five. He hoped that this state of affairs would long continue.

John Feeney was put forward. He was found guilty and sentenced to a year's imprisonment.

BARRY'S CIRCUS.

A number of special engagements added to the enjoyment of the programme presented at the Cirque Barry in the Rotunda Gardens, Dublin, last night. One of the new items was an aerial act by the Flying Potters, three artistes who are remarkably clever in an act which held the attention of the audience from start to finish. The excitement roused by the performance was relieved by many funny "mishaps" which people could not help laughing at. Broncho Bill's Wild West Show, with its horses, cowboys and cowgirls, was another additional attraction, while a third addition was a special juggling act by George Heird, of Australia, who was loudly applauded for his exceptionally good work. The Liberty horses and the six ponies showed great intelligence, while the performance of the clowns was very amusing. Max Rivers' "Piccadilly Peaches" were graceful in their movements, and excellent turns were provided also by Delino, "New Zealand's Wonder on the Wire"; Zacchini Family, Valdo Brothers and Briefs. A double vaultage act and a skating act were included in the bill.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT.

THE BRAY MOTORING ACCIDENT.

CHARGES AGAINST CIVIC GUARD FAIL.

(BEFORE MR. COLLINS.)

The Justice refused informations in all charges against Guard D. J. Byrne, of the "B" Division, College Station, who was accused of causing the deaths of two colleagues, Guards Michael Foster and Andrew Carter, by negligent and reckless driving of a motor car at Bray on July 13, and of stealing an Austin motor car belonging to William J. Love, Montgomery street, Belfast, early that morning.

Yesterday evidence was given by the owner of the car, William Love, who said that he was an auctioneer in Belfast and came to Dublin on holiday on July 12. He stayed at Jury's Hotel, and early on the morning of July 13 left his car in Anglesea street. At 8 o'clock that morning it was missing. It had not been locked, and when he saw it at Bray Civic Guard station on the following day it was very badly damaged. The car was valued at £250, and the damage probably would exceed £100. He had not given anyone permission to remove the car from Anglesea street.

A "JOY RIDE."

Christopher Noble, a night porter employed at Jury's Hotel, told the Court that on the morning of July 13, between 3.30 and 3.45, he was engaged loading a motor car outside the hotel when two Guards in uniform approached, and one of them said, "Hello there; working hard?" The Guard then asked, "What about a 'joy ride' in the car?" and the witness replied that there was no hope of a "joy ride" in that car, as it was going to Sligo. The Guard then said that there were three cars in Anglesea street, and asked whether they could go for a drive in one of them. After further conversation the Guards went away. The witness was not able to identify the Guard who spoke to him.

Superintendent Casserly, Bray Civic Guard, said that the damaged car and the body of Guard Foster were taken to the Bray station. The defendant also was there, and, after cautioning him, the witness asked where he had got the car.

Mr. T. Greene (Messrs. Roger Greene and Sons), who appeared for the defence, objected to the admission in evidence of any statement made by the defendant at that time. He was upset and incapable of answering questions. Furthermore, no charge had been preferred against him up to then, and the information was not being sought in connection with the charge. It was sought for the Commissioner of Police from a point of discipline.

The Justice ruled that the questions were admissable.

Continuing, the Superintendent said that the defendant told him that they had taken the car from outside Jury's Hotel and driven through Kingstown and into Bray, where they arrived at about 5.20 Guard Carter sat beside him, while Guard Foster sat in the back of the car. On turning to leave the town he heard Guard Foster say, "Turn down the road that leads to the sea." He did so, and a little later he heard Guard Foster say from the back of the car, "Look, boys, what I have found here." He looked back and saw Foster with a bottle of lemonade in his hand. When he looked to the front again he saw that the car was going straight for an electric light standard.

CAR STRIKES POST.

"Then," continued the Superintendent, "I asked him what speed he was going at at the time. He said, 'Between 25 and 30 miles an hour,' and added: 'I applied my brakes and swerved to the right, but the side of the car struck the post. When it came to a standstill I jumped out immediately, and as I jumped I saw Guard Carter open the door, but he fell out. I looked into the back and saw Guard Foster. As he did not move, I went to his assistance. He mumbled a few words which I did not understand. I said an act of contrition into his ear.'"

Mr. Greene submitted that gross negligence could not be shown by the prosecution. The attention of the driver had been distracted for a moment, and he had done all that was humanly possible to avoid the fatal accident. As regards the charge of larceny, there was no theft, as it had been shown that the Guards took the car away merely for a "joy ride."

As stated, the Justice refused informations in all charges.

Mr. T. A. Finlay (instructed by Mr. Clarke, of the State Solicitor's office) appeared for the prosecution.

NEWS SUMMARY.

IRELAND

The expansion of the Ford works at Cork were pointed out by two directors of the company to our Cork representative. It was stated that the present demand for tractors would afford employment for five thousand men.—(Page 8.)

GREAT BRITAIN

Mr. Henderson, Foreign Secretary, in the House of Commons yesterday, announced that no reply had been received as yet to the invitation to the Soviet Government to appoint a responsible representative to visit London.—(Page 7.)

The British Medical Association meeting at Manchester discussed the report presented by a special committee which for two years and a half has been investigating the principles and methods of psycho-analysis.—(Page 8.)

A statement on the position in the coal industry will be made in the British House of Commons to-day. The Prime Minister and other members of the Government received a deputation of coal-owners at Downing street. Mr. Herbert Smith delivered his presidential address at the opening of the Miners' Federation annual conference at Blackpool.—(Page 8.)

The Government's Housing Bill was read a third time in the House of Commons yesterday.—(Page 8.)

It was stated last night in Blackpool, where the Miners' Federation is meeting, that the British Government is contemplating reducing the miners' hours to seven and a half.—(Page 8.)

ABROAD.

The new North German Lloyd liner Bremen has crossed the Atlantic on her maiden voyage in 4 days 18 hours 17 minutes, thus creating a new "record."—(Page 7.)

Russia has declined France's offer of mediation in the dispute with China, but both the Soviet and the Chinese National Government announce their intention of abiding by the Kellogg Pact. Washington official circles are hopeful that hostilities will be averted.—(Page 7.)

The Earl of Athlone, Governor-General of South Africa, welcomed the delegates of the British Association at the opening session in Cape Town yesterday. Mr. Hofmeyr, President of the South African Association, in his presidential address, dealt with the great field which Africa offered to scientists.—(Page 7.)

FINANCIAL

London Stock Markets were quiet. Gilt-edged securities were easier on Bank rate fears.—(Page 3.)

There was a good demand for loans in Lombard street, the general charge being 5 per cent., with 5¼ per cent. in some cases. Discount rates were very firm on the gold withdrawals.—(Page 3.)

The Shannon Scheme.

Yesterday President Cosgrave opened the sluice gates leading to the head race of the Shannon water-power scheme, and for the first time diverted the waters of the river from their normal course into the gigantic canal which runs from the intake works to the power station at Ardnacrusha. Thus one of the final stages in the progress of the Shannon Scheme has been reached. Yesterday's ceremony marked the beginning of a testing period, during which water will be introduced into the canal at the rate of about three inches daily, in order that the strength of the embankments may be put to the strictest test before the turbines at Ardnacrusha are set in motion. Nobody who has not seen the Shannon works can have any real idea of their magnitude. Embankments have been built along a stretch of some eight miles to a height, at places, of as much as forty feet; and it obviously is essential that no risks shall be taken. When the scheme is in full working order there will be between twenty and thirty feet of water in the head race canal, and the banks which contain such a huge amount of water must be proof against accident. For this reason the German engineers are displaying the greatest caution. Their experience near Parteen Villa, where a portion of the embankments outside the head race collapsed last March, has taught them that, in dealing with a river such as the Shannon, nothing can be left to chance.

There is no doubt that the firm of Messrs. Siemens Bauunion has done its work well. For a time critics were inclined to fear that the constructional work might prove to be considerably more costly than the estimated figure, and the fact that the precise terms of the contract never have been published had encouraged gloomy forebodings. President Cosgrave, however, confirms the statement which was made in the Senate last week by the Minister for Industry and Commerce. A five per cent. margin will cover the difference between the actual and the estimated costs of the scheme. We welcome this announcement by the head of the Government; for there has been unnecessary secrecy concerning the work on the Shannon. Mr. Cosgrave also referred to the even more important problem of subsequent demand. If all goes well, the Shannon turbines will be in operation before the end of the winter. Final tests will be made in September, and, on the assumption that the subsidence in the "funnel" banks above Parteen Villa has been repaired satisfactorily, current ought to be available by the new year. Experts reckon that, with an annual consumption of 110,000,000 units of electricity, sold, in Mr. McGilligan's words, "at a certain price," the Shannon scheme will pay for itself. At the present rate of increase there will be a demand in 1932 for 144,000,000 units, and, if this figure is realised, not only will the scheme make ends meet, but actually it will register a profit.

Much, of course, will depend on Mr. McGilligan's "certain price." While the demand for electricity has been increasing during the last few years, its price has been falling—at any rate, in the big centres of consumption, such as Dublin and the major townships. As a very great proportion of the Free State's load is, and will continue to be, concentrated in the capital, the price of current to the metropolitan consumer is a matter of paramount importance. Hitherto no authoritative estimate has been given. At the beginning fantastic statements were made to the effect that current would be available at one penny per unit, but everybody knows now that there is no possibility of such a miracle. It is quite certain that the Shannon scheme must stand on its own legs from the start. The consumer must pay not only the upkeep charges, but also the sinking fund and interest on the capital cost of the scheme. For that reason the creation of an enhanced demand for current is essential. We hope sincerely that Mr. Cosgrave's rosy forecast will be justified by results, and that the date of the further development of the Shannon will not be postponed for many years. The scheme is a colossal enterprise, and its success cannot be measured in terms of mere money. If the Government's hopes are realised, a completely new orientation will be given to the economy of the Free State, which will take its place among the most progressive countries of the world. It is far too soon, however, to count the Shannon chickens. The whole problem is governed by the factor of price, and, until that is known, rejoicings or lamentations will be premature.

Science and Empire.

The holding in Cape Town of this year's session of the British Association for the Advancement of Science is an event of no mean significance. It demonstrates at once the present rank of the Dominions in the world of learning and the desire of the Empire's greatest minds to lay their gifts at the service of the whole Commonwealth. This week's meeting is the second that has been held in South Africa, but nearly a quarter of a century has passed since the first. Yesterday Mr. Hofmeyr, President of the South African Science Association, spoke of the immense debt that South Africa owes to science. Thanks to irrigation and similar services by engineering science, the land has been rendered so much more fertile that exports of the produce of the soil have increased since 1906 from about £6,000,000 in value to some £28,000,000. Nevertheless, the development of South Africa is but beginning. Herculean tasks await accomplishment. In particular, three great problems are posed for solution in the laboratory and in the field. In the first place, the whole land must be made fit for habitation by white men. Mr. Hofmeyr recalled the example of Panama, telling how the first effort to cut the great canal failed owing to the deadliness of the infection that haunted that region until science cleared the way by the extinction of the mosquito. What was achieved in Central America may be repeated in South Africa. In the second place, the foes, not of men alone, but of agriculture, must be conquered. In the third place, when South Africa has been made safe for the white race, and when crops of corn and fruit grow plentifully over the veldt, the harnessing of the country's great natural resources will tax scientific and engineering skill to their utmost. Science, when it aids South Africa, will confer benefits on the whole world; for the experience gained will be at the service of other lands. Justly, therefore, did Mr. Hofmeyr appeal to the savants who now are working in South African laboratories to think in terms of continents. Already General Smuts has expressed the patriotic ambition that South Africa should contribute to pure science as well as to practical science. He has pointed to the immensity of unexplored material awaiting the geologist, the ethnologist and the naturalist within the territories of the Union; and he himself, in his book expounding the philosophy of "holism," has made an important advance in metaphysical speculation. May we not aspire in Ireland to achievements as respectable as those of South Africa? May we not desire for the universities and laboratories of Dublin and Belfast ambitions as lofty as those of Cape Town, alike in the service of Ireland and of humanity? May we not hope that philosophy, as well as practical science, shall flourish within our shores? Here are ambitions that are open to certain realisation, granted but the will—ambitions, moreover, that would command the sympathy of the world.

A Travelling Theatre.

Every schoolboy knows—at least, Macaulay's schoolboy knew—that the drama of Sophocles, Euripides and Aristophanes had its origins in a cart-load of travelling actors. Now the Fascist Government, with its genius for intelligent resurrection, has gone back to that beginning. "Few Fascist undertakings," says the Rome Correspondent of The Times, "have won such an immediate and unqualified popularity as the travelling theatre known as 'The Car of Thespis.'" The father of this enterprise is Signor Turati, secretary of the Fascist Party, and it has sprung from his desire to make the theatre better known in rural districts of Campania, Calabria, Apulia and Sicily that are neglected by the ordinary touring companies. Formed of a canvas-covered steel skeleton, the theatre, with small dressing-rooms for the actors, can be put up or taken down in a few hours. It can be packed on two motor lorries, while the actors and actresses are transported in a motor char-à-bancs. The director is Signor Forzano, the noted stage-manager of the Scala at Milan; the costumes are in equally competent hands; the company includes eighteen actors and actresses of recognised standing. Extreme care has been given to the repertory of this travelling theatre. The aim was to find plays which would educate rural audiences and at the same time would contain the melodramatic qualities that appeal to unsophisticated minds. Early experiments suggest that classical dramas are the most successful, even as Shakespeare, presented by Mr. MacMaster's company, has filled makeshift theatres in the West of Ireland. As a general rule two performances will be given in every provincial headquarters and one in the smaller centres. The scheme was based on a trifling price for admission, but, by a special order of the Duce, all fees have been abolished except for a few rows at premières given in provincial headquarters. Thus, "The Car of Thespis" cannot be self-supporting, and presumably the main cost is borne by the State. Signor Turati's enlightened venture has our best wishes. In rural Ireland such a theatre would be a blessing and a joy.

Protection of Birds.

The Irish Society for the Protection of Birds deserves the support of all nature-lovers and, indeed, of all Christians. Poor in funds, but rich in zeal, it is fighting the cause of beauty and mercy in every county of the Free State. This fight, as the Society's latest report indicates, has not been unrewarded. After long pressure the Free State Ministry of Justice granted, two months ago, orders for the better protection of some of the rarer birds in Donegal, Kerry, Mayo, Waterford and Wexford. The complete enforcement of these orders is impossible without voluntary help, but the report testifies that such help has been given freely in widely scattered localities, and it pays a particular tribute to the co-operation of the Civic Guard. In Kerry the recent order has checked the plunder of choughs' eggs. In Wexford a like order, protecting the goldfinch and the linnet, has been challenged, but with small success, by "a strongly organised association of the local bird-catchers." Unfortunately, the Society's efforts to prevent the torture of small birds by means of birdlime and cramped cages are still futile. In a letter which we printed yesterday Major J. W. Seigne says that bird-snarers, "armed with all the hideous paraphernalia of their trade," are active in County Kilkenny. Our readers will remember that, two years ago, the Dáil rejected a bill which would have prohibited these cruelties, and we learn from the Society's report, with indignant surprise, that the Government has refused to reintroduce it. Such a bill, however, will be introduced as a private measure—with, as we trust, the backing of all decent electors. The contrast between the Dáil's apathy in this matter and its alacrity when the publicans jog its elbow is not edifying.

A FILM OF THE WEEK.

"A DAUGHTER OF DESTINY" AT THE GRAFTON THEATRE.

There is more than ordinary interest in the subject which forms the basis of "A Daughter of Destiny," the British and Continental Production Company's film which is showing at the Grafton Theatre this week. Although the story in itself is not new, it is presented in such attractive guise that from beginning to end the picture holds attention. It tells of the efforts of a very eminent biologist to solve the mystery of creation. He has experimented widely in plant and animal life, and his successes in those fields spur him on to greater effort in exploring the mystery of the soul in man. To demonstrate his purpose he tries the daring experiment of taking a little orphan girl, whose father, a notorious criminal, is executed just before her mother, by no means an exemplary character, dies in giving her birth. The scientist holds that the evil instincts are hardest of all to eradicate, and that, no matter what the environment or training, the subject will revert to type. The girl is educated in a convent, and at the leaving age of eighteen she runs away and becomes a member of a travelling circus. She is found by her foster-father, and brought home, but there are other outbreaks on the part of the young lady which would almost point to the soundness of the scientist's reasoning. But these peccadilloes are little more than the outpourings of a high-spirited girl, who has been denied the love and intimate guidance of a parent's hand. "You have only visited me once in all those years at the convent, and you expect me to call you 'Father,'" she says to the doctor. He has treated her soul as a specimen to be catalogued and analysed, and the girl's discovery of the experiment, revealed by her reading of the doctor's diary, almost drives her to that life of crime for which her guardian had predestined her. As so often happens in human affairs, it is the factor which has not been taken into calculation at all which brings the doctor's theories tumbling to ruin, and the manner in which that happens provides a very stirring climax to the film.

Brigitte Helm, who figured so conspicuously in the film, "Metropolis," displays marked ability in her presentation of the part of the adopted girl, reflecting its varying moods in the most interesting manner conceivable. She has the assistance of a strong company, which includes Ivan Ivanovitch, Paul Wegener and John Loder.

The picture is well photographed and set.

EMPLOYMENT FOR EX-SERVICE MEN.

MARKET GARDENING SCHEME.

Writing on the necessity for employment schemes for ex-Service men, Major Edward Hamilton, 91 Merrion square, Dublin, says:

"A scheme was prepared on lines which had been found useful in providing casual employment for ex-Service men for a period of over eight years, and was submitted both to the Area Council of the British Legion, Southern Area, Irish Free State, and to the London Committee of the Southern Irish Loyalists' Relief Association. The scheme, which has been approved of, is now financed by the 'Southern Area Council of the British Legion' and the 'Southern Irish Loyalists' Relief Association,' and is worked on the following lines:—

"A small plot of land suitable for nursery market garden purposes has been acquired, where, under the supervision of an expert head gardener, Mr. W. B. Kaye, who has been strongly recommended by Messrs. Drummond and Co. as suitable for the purposes of developing the market garden and training men as working and assistant gardeners, it is proposed to develop the market garden as a paying concern to its utmost possibilities.

"It is not intended to retain these men in employment for a longer period than is absolutely necessary, as Mr. Kaye, the Superintendent, who is extensively employed as a landscape gardener in the vicinity of Dublin, under the terms of his employment, agrees to employ ex-Service men exclusively with works or contracts he may have on hand elsewhere.

"It is hoped that all people who are interested in the assisting of ex-Service men will do their best to give one or two days' employment in the week to men who can be passed on to them by Mr. Kaye as suitable for any work required to be done.

"For this purpose application should be made in the first instance to the Hon. Secretary, Garden Scheme for British ex-Service men, at 91 Merrion square, W., Dublin.

"Even where people have small gardens and could not give a whole day's employment, men will be supplied from the Dépôt who are willing to work, if only for a few hours."

LONDON LETTER.

MINERS' HOURS.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
MONDAY NIGHT.

Mr. Ramsay Macdonald received representatives of the coal-owners at Downing street this morning, and continued negotiations on the question of amending the miners' hours. It is not known what progress was made; but a statement is to be made by Mr. Macdonald in the House to-morrow. In the Lobby this afternoon all the talk was of the proceedings at the annual conference of the Miners' Federation at Blackpool; for it is thought among the Socialists that the miners desire to make the position of the Government impossible, unless it gives way to their demands. It is known that when the Prime Minister saw the Federation officers on Friday last he pointed out that it was impossible to promise them a repeal of the eight hours' day in the immediate future, though something might be done if they could prepare a workable scheme among themselves. It is now understood that this idea does not satisfy many of the more prominent men among the miners, and they demand the repeal of the Eight Hours (Mines) Act, and nothing less. In the circumstances, the Prime Minister must be thankful that Parliament is closing down this week.

The Indian Viceroy.

A very distinguished visitor to the House of Commons to-day was Lord Irwin, Viceroy of India, who put in an early appearance in the gallery reserved for members of the House of Lords, and stayed to listen to the questions addressed to the Secretary of State for India. Lord Irwin, looking very well, afterwards met several friends in the Lobby, where he was the centre of interest.

Socialist Inconsistency.

The inconsistency of the Socialist Party is remarkable. Only a year or two ago the British Government had to send troops to China, particularly to Shanghai, to protect not only British property, but British lives. The Socialist cry then was one long protest against interference with Chinese affairs. In fact, "Hands off China" was a kind of slogan adopted by the party. To-day, when China is being threatened by Russia, the Socialists sit in the House of Commons and listen to the story, and there is never a word of protest to Russia, or a demand that the Soviet shall keep its hands off China. It is extraordinary that such things should be, since it suggests that to the Socialist any other country which he favours may do as it pleases, while his own country always is in the wrong.

Poor Law Administration.

Parliament has nothing very important in the way of business this week, and much of the time will be occupied by discussions on various matters. To-morrow there will be a debate, initiated by Mr. Nevile Chamberlain, on the removal of the official Poor Law administrators at Bedwellty, Chester-le-Street and West Ham. The Opposition attaches much importance to this discussion; for it will enable it to do justice to the great work done by the administrators during the past few years, and to draw attention to the immense sums saved to the ratepayers through their efforts. It is highly improbable, however, that the debate will make any difference in the situation. The extremist centres affected demand their freedom from interference, and they are to have it, while the ratepayers are again to be bound in fetters.

School-Leaving Age.

The Government is to be severely heckled on its somewhat rash decision to increase the school-leaving age in 1931. It is widely believed that the Government allowed itself to be rushed into this step without counting the cost. Lieutenant-Colonel Heneage is asking Sir Charles Trevelyan on Thursday whether any associations representing parents' interests have been consulted, and, if so, whether he will name them. The trouble is, of course, that parents are unrepresented, except to the extent that it is the business of the ordinary member of Parliament to look after them. The teachers, on the other hand, are a powerfully organised body, and that is the explanation of a decision which is certainly unpopular in the country as a whole, and will become more so when all its implications are more generally realised.

Labour and the Lords.

An interesting debate is looked for in the House of Lords on Wednesday, when Lord Darling will propose that Secretaries of State shall be allowed to speak in either House of Parliament, but shall not be permitted to vote in that one of which they are not members. Such a course, if adopted, would do much to obviate the necessity of the Prime Minister's appointing more Labour peers to give strength to his following in the Upper House. Should the resolution proposed by Lord Darling be accepted, it could come into operation at once.

Air Co-operation.

A most interesting air conference is to take place in London next week, when M. Laurent Eynac, the French Minister of Air, is coming to London to meet Lord Thomson, our Air Minister, and other high officials of the Air Ministry, to discuss questions of commercial air relationship between Great Britain and France. Among the questions to be discussed will be that of co-operation on the India service and a promised extension by the French between India and China. Considerable importance is attached to this conference in air circles in both this country and in France, and it is hoped that it will result in closer working arrangements between the two countries. M. Eynac leaves Paris by aeroplane on Sunday to take part in the Blériot celebrations in Calais, and on Monday he will fly to London, to be met at Croydon by a distinguished gathering.

The Spanish King.

The King of Spain left Victoria this morning on his way home to Madrid, but before going to the station he paid a visit to the Queen to bid farewell. As he left Buckingham Palace, accompanied by the Duke of York, the band in the courtyard played the Spanish National Anthem. At Victoria, the Duke of Gloucester, the Duke of Connaught, Princess Beatrice, the Marquis and Marchioness of Carisbrooke and other members of the Royal Family were waiting to see the King depart, and, with the Marquis and Marchioness Merry Del Val, King Alfonso made his farewells in the Royal waiting-room; but after entering the train he leaned out to shake hands again with the Duke of Gloucester and the Duke of York.

OPENING OF SHANNON SCHEME CANAL.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY.

PRESIDENT COSGRAVE'S SPEECH.

ELECTRICITY AVAILABLE IN EARLY WINTER.

"HENCEFORWARD the Shannon will be harnessed in the service of the nation, distributing light, heat and power throughout the Saorstat, increasing at once the comfort of our homes and the productive capacity of our farms and factories."

These words taken from President Cosgrave's speech in opening the new canal of the Shannon power scheme, yesterday, give some idea of the scope and promise of the work.

The opening ceremony was a simple and impressive one. The Roman Catholic Bishop of Killaloe read three prayers invoking blessings upon various phases of the work, a choir of priests and laymen chanted a "Te Deum," and the Sirens of the Shannon Works gave forth their shrilly notes as Mr. Cosgrave touched the switch and let the water of the river pass beneath the sluice and glide throughout the length of the canal.

From six to eight weeks must elapse before the water is allowed to rise to its full height, and Mr. Cosgrave believes that the Shannon's supply of electricity will be available throughout the Free State early in the Winter.

NEW CHAPTER IN THE SHANNON'S STORY.

MR. COSGRAVE'S ADDRESS.

Before he admitted the waters of the Shannon to the new canal, President Cosgrave said:—

To-day's ceremony marks the opening of the gates to admit, for the first time, the waters of the Shannon along the head-race canal. Our greatest, our most famous, river is entering on a new chapter of its long story; a chapter sketched, perhaps, in some minds in the past, but not written until to-day. Henceforward the Shannon will be harnessed in the service of the nation, distributing light, heat and power throughout the Saorstat, and increasing at once the comfort of our homes and the productive capacity of our farms and factories. The intake gates which I am about to raise are 80 feet in width, and weigh 85 tons each. Under normal circumstances they will always be open. They control the passing of the water from the Shannon into the canal, along which it will flow to the power station. There it will be drawn down through each great turbine at the rate of 100 tons a second, and thus will be produced the power that will be transmitted far and wide throughout Saorstat Eireann.

The great weir, which lies just beyond the intake buildings, dams up the river to the height required for power purposes. It has six openings, closed like the intake openings, by heavy steel gates. Even with one of the main gates closed, the weir will be able to discharge the maximum recorded flow of water in any flood period. It is designed to prevent the water in Lough Derg from rising higher than its normal winter level. It will thus be a powerful agent in the reduction of those Shannon floods from which the district has suffered in the past. Yet, massive though the structure is, to serve these purposes, it will offer no obstacle to the passage of salmon, for whom a ladder of pools is provided, nor even to the journeys of the humble eel, who will make his way to the upper river by tubes through which ropes of straw will run.

NAVIGATION.

The canal extends from Parteen Villa to Ardnacrusha, a distance of eight miles, and delivers the water to the turbine opening at the same level as Lough Derg. The water then, in one straight fall, pours down one hundred feet, the difference in level between Lough Derg and the River Shannon at the tail race. The canal is about ninety yards wide at water level, thirty yards wide on its bed, and thirty feet deep. Its dimensions are such as to enable it to be used as the future course for navigation. Previously boats passed down the old canal from O'Brien's Bridge. In future they will pass through the special opening, which can be seen at the in-take, along the canal, and thence by the Abbey River to Limerick. Their passage will be shortened by the substitution of the one lock at the power station for the many locks on the old canal and by the increased speed at which they will be able to travel.

The filling of the head race for the first time has to proceed with great care, and the water will accordingly not be raised by much more than some three inches per day. It is expected to have reached a sufficient height in September next to permit of the final testing of the turbines and generators. In that case it is probable that the supply of electric power throughout the Free State from the Shannon can be begun in the early winter.

REPLY TO DOUBTERS.

Doubts have been expressed from time to time on two main questions arising out of the Shannon development. Firstly, the dependability of the estimates of the cost of construction has been questioned; secondly, the amount of power for which there would be a market when the works were completed has been pessimistically reckoned.

To the first question an answer can now be given which has stilled the doubts of the most convinced of sceptics. It is known from the recent statement of the Minister for Industry and Commerce that a margin of less than five per cent. will cover the difference between the actual and the estimated cost of construction. This result reflects the highest credit on the great firm that prepared the designs and estimates, on the engineers and workmen who have brought those designs so far and so successfully towards their final stage, and on the officers who have supervised the scheme for the Minister.

All concerned in this vast undertaking, which we can see to-day almost in its permanent shape, may well be proud of its successful progress. The country, too, will always take pride in the magnificent installation created by such arduous labour, so much skill in conception and such tenacity in execution. It has been demonstrated in this convincing, visible form that Saorstat Eireann can carry out, rapidly, efficiently and economically, a hydro-electric scheme on a scale as large as any in Europe. Thereby has been laid a firm foundation for confidence, both at home and abroad, in our capacity to realise those economic developments of wide national scope and effect to which we all look forward.

QUESTION OF DEMAND.

To the second question, as to whether the power to be generated in the power station will be disposed of successfully, only time can give the final reply. The Minister for Industry and Commerce has, however, recently explained that the consumption of electricity supplied from existing plants is increasing at such a rate as to leave no doubt that the anticipations of the experts who originally advised us on the consumption to be expected will be realised in full. Indeed it is certain that even so great a plant as this now before you will, in a comparatively few years, prove insufficient for our needs. Other developments to increase our power supply will have to be undertaken. Their planning and execution will stimulate the initiative of our engineers, and spur our economic enterprise. I am performing this ceremony to-day in the happy conviction that it marks a great step forward in the advancement of our country, and in the confident hope that it is only the first, though perhaps the most significant, of many such steps.

THE CEREMONY.

"TE DEUM" AND PRAYERS.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.
LIMERICK, Monday.

A choir of priests and laymen to-day intoned the "Te Deum," and shrill voices issued from the sirens of the Shannon Works when President Cosgrave raised the sluice gates and for the first time let the waters of the river flow into the newly-formed canal. The audience was possibly the most representative that Mr. Cosgrave has yet addressed in Ireland. Before he spoke and raised the gates, however, there was prayer by the Bishop of Killaloe (Dr. Fogarty):—

"Oh Almighty and merciful God, sole source of light and power, Who commandest the winds and the waves, and Who made streams run down from the rock in the wilderness, pour, we beseech Thee, Thy all-protecting blessing over this immense aqueduct, constructed in Thy Name at the cost of so much labour, so that, ever guarded by Thy provident care, it may successfully bring the waters of the Shannon to turn the turbines and generate the mysterious power of electricity, for Thy glory and the benefit of the people of Ireland; and grant that we, Thy servants, guided by Thy hand, may be brought, when life is over, to the never-failing light and glory of Paradise, through Christ Our Lord. Amen."

Then Mr. Cosgrave stood bareheaded in the rain, and, from the little platform on the embankment, he began to speak. His hearers included all the members of the Cabinet, some fifty Senators and deputies—among them Mr. de Valera, leader of the Opposition; the foreign consular representatives in Dublin, heads of the Free State Army and police forces, members of a score of public bodies, leaders of commerce, representatives of the professions and the arts, and of the many varied interests of the State.

A "MOMENTOUS DAY."

Mr. Cosgrave began with a reference to this momentous day at Parteen Villa, on which he was about to admit for the first time the waters of the Shannon to the head race canal—the waterway by which they will be conveyed to the power station, to turn the turbines which will generate heat, light and power for the Irish Free State. "Our most famous river is entering on a new chapter in its history; henceforward it will be harnessed to the service of the nation."

Mr. Cosgrave, on concluding his speech, releases an electric switch, and the great intake gates begin to rise, the National Army Band strikes up "The Soldier's Song." The audience stands bareheaded in the rain. The waters of the Shannon flow beneath the sluice gates into the canal, and the crowd is no longer able to restrain a cheer.

BLESSING THE GATES.

After the singing of the 103rd and 123rd Psalms and the Benedictus, the Bishop blessed the gates in this prayer:—

"O Almighty and everlasting God, by Whose high providence all things are governed, deign we beseech Thee to bless from on high these newly-erected gates to control the inflow of the Shannon's waves; so that, protected by Thy arm, they may rightly fulfil their purpose for Thy greater glory and the good of the people of Ireland; and grant that we Thy servants, illumined by the light of grace, may regulate our lives according to Thy holy will in all things, and after the darkness of this world be admitted through Thy mercy within the gates of eternal light. Through Christ our Lord. Amen."

Then the procession sang a Litany of the Saints, and the Bishop recited the prayer for the blessing of the canal, and subsequently this final prayer of blessing on the whole scheme:—

"O Almighty and eternal God, Who alone disposeth all things rightly, and without Whose aid the grandest designs of men and nations must come to nought, graciously hear our prayers, and send Thy angel from Heaven to watch over, defend and protect these vast works, now happily completed by Thy favour, and keep them ever safe, and make them ever more fruitful for the glory of Thy name and profit of the people of Ireland. Through Christ our Lord. Amen.

"And may the Queen of Heaven and St. Michael the Archangel, and all the saints of Ireland, make intercession for us, and present our petitions before the Throne of God, in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost. Amen."

A SLOW PROCESS.

The ceremony was significant rather than impressive. One fancies that the spectators may have been disappointed that the waters of the Shannon were not allowed to rush in turbulent flood into the head race. Actually the flooding of the new water course, as Mr. Cosgrave pointed out, is to be a slow and gradual process, extending over six to eight weeks.

The big majority of notable visitors—including most of the members of the Cabinet, the foreign Consuls, and the members of the Dail and Senate—came from Dublin journeying to Limerick by a fast special train which left Kingsbridge at 10.45 a.m. and returned at 9 p.m. Mr. Cosgrave journeyed to Limerick by motor car from Rosslare, where he is spending a quiet holiday. On his arrival at

NEW ATLANTIC "RECORD."

GERMAN LINER'S MAIDEN TRIP.

MAURETANIA'S BEST BEATEN BY SIX HOURS.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
NEW YORK, Monday.

The new North German Lloyd liner, Bremen, reached the Ambrose Light, at the entrance to New York Harbour, on her maiden voyage at 3.2 p.m. to-day. She had thus taken four days eighteen hours seventeen minutes from Cherbourg, compared with the fastest previous crossing made from Cherbourg last year by the Mauretania of five days two hours thirty-four minutes.

An aeroplane was catapulted from the Bremen at five minutes past one, when the ship was going about 28 knots, some twenty miles east of Fire Island. It landed in the bay at 1.35 p.m., with eight sacks of mails on board.

MAURETANIA "RECORD."

Since the Mauretania was launched on the Tyne in 1906 she has created a number of Atlantic "records," and until to-day her supremacy has been unchallenged. She established her first "record" passage in September, 1910, by crossing from Daunt's Rock to Sandy Hook Lightship in four days ten hours forty-one minutes.

In 1922 she created a fresh "record" by crossing from Cherbourg to New York in five days seven hours and thirty-three minutes, and two years later she lowered this by making the passage in five days three hours and twenty minutes.

This was still further reduced in September last, when the Mauretania completed the 3,096 miles in five days two hours and thirty-four minutes.

Among the other records held by the Mauretania are the following:—

1909—New York to Queenstown, 4 days 13 hours 41 minutes; average speed, 25.89 knots.

1910—Queenstown to New York, 4 days 10 hours 41 minutes; average speed, 26.06 knots.

1911—Day's run of 676 nautical miles, an average of 27.04 knots.

1928—Covered 652 miles at average of over 26 knots between Cherbourg and New York.

The Norddeutscher-Lloyd liner Bremen is the newest and largest vessel in the German trans-Atlantic liner fleet. Her gross tonnage is given in Lloyd's Register as 46,000, the Majestic, the largest liner afloat, being 56,621 tons.

It is rumoured that on her speed trials the Bremen exceeded 28 knots, but the exact figure has been kept a close secret.

THE "BLUE RIBAND."

It has been well known for some time that the Germans would attempt to regain the "Blue Riband" of the Atlantic, which they held until it was wrested from them by the Mauretania, and the Bremen represents the first serious effort in this direction since the war. Much secrecy has been maintained regarding the details of her construction and trial performances, but it has been stated that the official measurements carried out before her delivery to the Norddeutscher-Lloyd showed her tonnage to be greater than originally estimated—namely, 49,864 tons.

Vast crowds gathered at Bremerhaven on Tuesday last to witness the departure of the Bremen on her maiden voyage to New York, and a description of the scene was broadcast.

At a banquet given by the owners it was stated that the results of the trial trips justified the belief that in the Bremen they had found what would for the present be the "most favourable solution of the problem of trans-Atlantic traffic." It was emphasised, however, that the new vessel had not been designed primarily for record performances, but for "the certain fulfilment of the tasks allotted to her."

SHORTER DAY FOR MINERS.

LABOUR GOVERNMENT'S REPORTED INTENTION.

The Press Association Labour correspondent, telephoning from Blackpool last night, states:—It is stated here on good authority that it is the intention of the Government to revert to the seven-hour day for the mining industry by easy stages.

It is proposed to introduce a 7½ hour day by the end of this year, and by the time the Eight Hours Act expires in 1931 seven hours will be reached. This decision is expected to meet the demand of the Miners' Federation for a reduced working day.

Among the owners the position is regarded as critical, and it is considered highly significant that a meeting has been called in London on Thursday of the chairmen and managing directors of every colliery company in the country.

RELATIONS WITH RUSSIA.

NO REPLY TO BRITISH INVITATION.

In the House of Commons yesterday, Mr. A. Henderson, Foreign Secretary, replying to Mr. R. A. Taylor (Lab., Lincoln), said that no reply had yet been received from the Soviet Government in answer to the British invitation to appoint a responsible representative to visit London.

Mr. Smithers (Con., Chislehurst)—Are we to understand that the invitation of the British Government has been entirely ignored?

Mr. Henderson—I must surely wait a certain period to give an opportunity to the Soviet Government to decide upon its policy. I have been long enough in this House to know that British Governments sometimes take a long time to make up their minds.

DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE.

Mr. Henderson, Foreign Secretary, informed Mr. Boothby (Con., Aberdeen, East) that the political and economic problems relating to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics would not be discussed in the forthcoming negotiations between Great Britain and the United States. It would not, he added, make for clarity to mix this question with conversations on naval disarmament.

RECENT EVENTS IN MALTA.

NO BRITISH NOTE SENT TO THE VATICAN.

Mr. A. Henderson, Foreign Secretary, in the House of Commons yesterday, informed Commander Kenworthy that the British Government had sent no Note to the Vatican with regard to recent events in Malta.

PRIESTS DENOUNCE GOVERNMENT.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
MALTA, Monday.

An extremely violent campaign against the Government and its supporters has been inaugurated by several parish priests in the churches here and in the sister island of Gozo. These priests, it is reported from a trustworthy source yesterday morning, denounced the Government in unequivocal terms.

S.E. LEEDS BY-ELECTION.

Nomination day in the by-election in South-East Leeds, caused by the appointment of Sir Henry Slesser as a Lord Justice, has been fixed for to-morrow.

In the unlikely event of a contest polling will take place on August 1. At the present Major James Milner (Labour) is the only candidate in the field.

KELLOGG PACT IN FAR EAST.

RUSSIA AND CHINA TO HONOUR IT.

ASSURANCES FROM BOTH.

SOVIET REFUSES FRENCH OFFER.

The Soviet Government has declined France's offer to mediate in the Soviet-Chinese conflict owing to the refusal of the Chinese authorities to restore the former conditions on the Chinese Eastern Railway.

Both China and the Soviet have stated, however, that they intend to abide by the conditions of the Kellogg Pact. The Chinese Minister in Washington has announced that he is hopeful that an amicable means of settlement will be found.

Official opinion in Washington is strongly inclined to the view that the present crisis will pass without hostility.

The British Government have intimated to the United States and France that they associate themselves with those Governments in the efforts they are making for peace.

HOPEFUL FEELING IN WASHINGTON.

STATEMENT BY CHINESE MINISTER.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
WASHINGTON, Monday.

Mr. Stimson announced this afternoon that Mr. Debuchi, the Japanese Ambassador, had informed him on instructions from Tokio that Baron Shidehara, the Japanese Foreign Minister, was fully cooperating in the peace move to avert hostilities in Manchuria.

Dr. Wu, the Chinese Minister, acting upon instructions from Nanking, informed Mr. Stimson, Secretary of State, to-day that China had abided by the obligations of the Kellogg Treaty and would continue to do so.

Dr. Wu's statement to Mr. Stimson was in reply to the Secretary of State's Note drawing the attenion of China to the fact that she was a signatory of the Kellogg Treaty. He told Mr. Stimson that the reported seizure of the Chinese Eastern Railway actually consisted of the dismissal of the Russian employés. He added that he was hopeful that an amicable means of settlement of the dispute would be found.

RUSSIA'S PROMISE.

Mr. Stimson also announced that he had been informed by M. Claudel, the French Ambassador that the latter had been notified that the Soviet would, if possible, abide by the Kellogg Pact. M. Claudel told Mr. Stimson that M. Briand, the French Foreign Minister, had been informed by the Russian Ambassador in Paris that the Soviet would abide by the Treaty.

Generally speaking, official opinion in Washington is strongly inclined to the view that the present crisis will pass without hostility. Mr. Stimson himself seemed very hopeful at the Press Conference this morning.

ANOTHER CHINESE NOTE.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
NANKING, Monday.

It is reported that the Foreign Office has sent another Note to the Soviet reiterating the desire of the National Government for the settlement of the Chinese Eastern Railway issue by peaceful negotiation.

It is also reported that the National Government has sent separate Notes to the States which are signatories of the Kellogg Pact, stating that while China wishes to defend her rights she has no intention of starting a war with Russia. The Notes point out that the Soviet Government, which assumed the offensive on the Chinese border, is the party which has violated the spirit of the Kellogg Pact.

RUSSIAN REPLY TO FRANCE.

OFFER OF MEDIATION DECLINED.

MOSCOW, Monday.

The Foreign Commissariat publishes the following statement:—The French Government has addressed to the Soviet Government an offer to undertake mediation for an amicable settlement of the Soviet-Chinese conflict. The offer was made by M. Briand to the Russian Ambassador, Dovgalevsky, in Paris, and by M. Herbette, the French Ambassador in Moscow, to Karakhan, the Vice-Foreign Commissar.

Karakhan, on behalf of the Soviet Government, has replied as follows to the French Ambassador:—"It is impossible to under-estimate the importance of the offer of the French Ministry of Foreign Affairs, but the Soviet Government is compelled to state that this offer is to no purpose owing to the refusal of the Chinese authorities to restore the legal position violated by them, which constitutes the necessary condition for settlement in accordance with the Soviet Government's Note of July 13th. As regards the question of possible further complications, the Soviet Government must declare that no one is so concerned about the maintenance of peace as the Soviet Government, and there is no reason for doubting that the U.S.S.R. has been, and remains, the bulwark of peace."

In connection with the statement of the French Embassy in Washington to the effect that it has no information regarding the Soviet Government's reply to the diplomatic steps taken by Mr. Stimson, the semi-official Tass Agency is informed that the Foreign Commissariat has received no notification of any steps by the United States Government in connection with the rupture of relations between the Soviet Republics and China.

BRITISH EFFORTS FOR PEACE.

STATEMENT IN HOUSE OF COMMONS.

In the Imperial Parliament yesterday,

Mr. Henderson, Foreign Secretary, replying to Captain Eden (Conservative, Warwick and Leamington), said:—As a result of a communication received from the United States Government on Saturday the British Government sent an intimation both to the United States and the French Governments that they associated themselves with these Governments in all their efforts they were making to secure a peaceful settlement of the dispute between China and Russia.

Sir Henry Page Croft asked whether the Foreign Secretary would give an undertaking that there would be no closer diplomatic

DUBLIN HORSE SHOW.

PREPARATIONS WELL ADVANCED.

NOVEL JUMPS INTRODUCED.

In a tour of Ballsbridge Showyard yesterday, the Irish Times Agricultural Correspondent found everything in an advanced state of preparation for the Royal Dublin Society's great Horse Show on the 6th, 7th, 8th and 9th August.

At the moment a gang of workmen is busy getting ready the ploughed gallop in the Veterinary Paddock. Great care is taken in preparing this gallop to ensure that no rough clinkers or stones are left in the soil. Most of it is actually ploughed with a team of three horses, so that it will be in fine condition when the Show opens. No Horse Show in the world, it is claimed, provides such facilities as these.

The number of distinguished people who will visit this year's Show will, it is understood, be greatly in excess of any previous year, and the Director is daily receiving intimation of special representatives who have been appointed by foreign countries to attend. The names of these will be announced in due course.

Another feature which tends to demonstrate the widespread fame of the Show is the fact that most of the Army teams on this occasion will have superior officers in charge in addition to the actual competitors.

NEW JUMPS.

A novelty in connection with the military jumping competitions will be the introduction of jumps that have not previously been seen at Ballsbridge. These will be jumped daily and include rustic gates, railway sleeper jumps, snake fences and two gates, in and out. These will provide a novelty which will add considerably to the afternoon features of the jumping each day.

In the international contest there will be a series of jumps introduced, in addition to the Society's course, which will be new from the Ballsbridge standpoint. These have been in process of construction during the past few weeks, and plans of the jumps have been issued to all officers competing.

It seems probable that all seats on the Anglesea Stand will be booked prior to the opening of the Show, as now there are only a few hundred vacant.

The position which the Society has attained for unique organisation of these events will be testified more than ever this year by the attendance of the representatives of agricultural bodies in Great Britain who want to see how the Society's programme is carried through.

THE MAIN HALL.

Owing to the restricted space allowed to trade exhibits at the Horse Show, visitors will be able to move about the Main Hall in comfort, while the walk from the Main Hall through the South Hall to the judging rings is now made of concrete instead of clay—a marked improvement.

On the Bloodstock Sale Paddock side I find that a new surface has been given to the sale ring. This, the Royal Dublin Society believe, will bear the hard wear and tear of 800 yearlings passing through it in four days. In addition, a permanent improvement in the offices has been effected. This will double the accommodation hitherto available for the auctioneers, railway officials, owners, trainers, etc.

The rain has come just in time to put the paddocks and jumping enclosure into nice order.

QUESTION OF DEBTS AND REPARATIONS.

FRENCH SENATE COMMITTEE'S VOTE.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
PARIS, Monday.

After hearing a statement by its Rapporteur, M. Charles Dumont, the Finance Committee of the French Senate to-day decided by twenty-five votes to one to propose that the Upper House should vote unamended the bills adopted by the Chamber concerning the ratification of Debts Agreements.

The Committee also adopted unanimously a motion, which will be brought up in the Senate when the Ratification bills have been approved. This motion stipulates that in the event of Germany suspending or appreciably reducing her payments the French Government could ask for a three years' postponement of all, or a part, of her payments, according to Clause 2 of the Washington Agreement and Clause 4 of the London Agreement, completed by the letters exchanged between M. Caillaux and Mr. Churchill.

The last paragraph of the motion is as follows:—The Senate counts in the negotiations which will then be opened on the friendship and loyalty of the United States and Great Britain. War debts were contracted with a view to ensuring the victory of the great inter-Allied causes, for which several million men fought and died. Their settlement ought not to aggravate the burdens of France or restrict her legislative freedom as a sovereign nation.

TWO DAYS' DEBATE.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
PARIS, Monday.

The debate in the Senate on the ratification of the Debt Agreements is expected to begin on Thursday, after the measure has been reported in Committee, but it is not thought that the debate will last more than two days. MM. Caillaux and Berenger, the negotiators of the British and American Agreements, respectively, will be among the speakers.

relations with either of these Powers until it was certain that the Kellogg Pact had not been violated.

Mr. Henderson—No; I think that for me to give a committal like that, in view of the fact that it has not yet been decided which of the two countries is at fault, would not be acting in the interests of peace.

Commander Locker-Lampson (Con., Handsworth) asked if the Foreign Secretary would do anything in his power to prevent the use of poison gas by the Soviet.

No answer was given.

Replying to a question by Major McKenzie Wood (Liberal, Banff), as to whether the Government would take action for the calling of a special meeting of the Council of the League of Nations,

Mr. Henderson said that the Government were prepared to exhaust every means to secure a peaceful settlement, but when one of the disputant nations was a member of the League and the other was not, it was not easy to put the League's machinery into operation.

NO MAIL SERVICE VIA SIBERIA.

The British Postmaster-General announces that the despatch of mails to China and Japan via Siberia is suspended until further notice. Correspondence received specially addressed for the Siberian route will be diverted to the routes of North America and Suez.

RESUMPTION OF RELATIONS.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
BERLIN, Monday.

The Moscow Correspondent of the Berliner Tageblatt learns that the Soviet Government has decided not to accept the British Government's proposal to send delegates to London in order to discuss conditions for the resumption of diplomatic relations without a definite declaration by the British Government as regards the resumption of relations.

LATE NEWS.

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THE TIMES.

SCIENCE IN AFRICA.

"INSPIRATION TO THE WHOLE WORLD."

In the course of a leading article upon the meeting of the British Association at Cape Town, The Times observes to-day:—Mr. Hofmeyr, possibly out of his experience as a successful publicist, used the intriguing phrases that the chief character of the progress of science in South Africa during the last quarter of a century had been its "South Africanisation," and that the note of the future should be the "Africanisation of science in South Africa." Even if the phrases be stripped of their patriotic colouring, they retain a valuable plain meaning. Science, or any other branch of learning, is in an unhealthy state in any country in which it remains an exotic. Its principles, no doubt, are international; but, if they are to be taught effectively and exercised productively, they must receive their inspiration from a local environment, and be attuned to local needs. Take botany or geology, engineering or astronomy, and it will be found that the local examples explain the principles most suitably, and that the local conditions give the best stimulus to discovery.

In this sense, as Mr. Hofmeyr showed, science has become "South Africanized." The seeds brought from Europe have taken root in a new soil, have produced luxuriant foliage and blossoms and fruits different in flavour from those of the original plant. Possibly Mr. Hofmeyr went farther than all his audience would be ready to follow in suggesting that the next stage should be the "Africanization" of what has now been "South Africanized." There are other "portals of entry" even south of the Equator than those of South Africa, and from the North and by the West and the East science and civilization are creeping into the Dark Continent. But Africa has problems to solve and discoveries to yield more than sufficient for all the scientific enterprise that can reach it. There is no Monroe Doctrine in science, and it is a gain and inspiration to the whole world that South Africa, having accomplished so much, should be ready and anxious to undertake so much more.

A SIGNIFICANT DAY AT WASHINGTON.

FIRST TEST OF KELLOGG-BRIAND TREATY.

In a dispatch from Washington last night The Times Correspondent says:—A series of visits to Mr. Stimson, the Secretary of State, by the French and Japanese Ambassadors, and the Chinese Minister, this morning, was the first indication that developments of importance in the Chinese-Soviet dispute were at hand. It was very early apparent that the belief that the danger of actual war had been averted had been strengthened, and that the question next in importance and difficulty might be the securing of the return to the status quo as a condition precedent to measures either of conciliation or arbitration.

It is worth observing that in the measure as the conviction grew that a peaceful issue was in sight care was taken at the State Department to emphasise the importance of Mr. Stimson's invocation of the general Pact for the renunciation of war, and the incidental character of his choice of the signatories of the four Powers' pacific Treaty, as the parties most immediately interested and most fitly to be approached in this emergency. Nothing is more clear than that if the Kellogg-Briand Treaty meets and survives this first test, it will be given a place in the determination of American policy and of the methods to be utilised, of first importance.

The Daily Telegraph, in a leading article to-day, observes:—The new basis for payment of reparations in kind must seriously prejudice our trade, which also might be affected adversely by certain possibilities of the scheme for an International Bank.

These are some of the considerations which dispose the British Government to insist that regard should be paid to its wishes in such a matter as convenience in the venue of the Conference.

"EMPIRE CRUSADE."

The Daily News and Westminster Gazette, in a leading article to-day, states:—What is the real significance of Lord Beaverbrook's so-called "Empire crusade" to tax all foreign food coming into this country? As a contribution to serious politics it is stark nonsense. If any party in the State were to adopt his proposal as a fixed policy it would commit political suicide. If by some lunatic miracle the nation itself could be diddled into acquiescence there would soon be a national inquest.

We find it hard to believe that Lord Beaverbrook, a man of considerable intelligence, is not by this time thoroughly aware that he has backed a horse which will never run.

THE MINERS' PLIGHT.

The Morning Post to-day says:—We are sorry for the miners. What they really want is good employment and good wages. But they are become the "cannon fodder" of their Trade Union "militarists." Their employment and their wages and the good of the industry are all sacrificed to political revolutionary ends.

"Nationalisation," "internationalisation," a "six-hours day," such follies suggest a bankruptcy of leadership, and the fact that the Federation has lost 82,000 members suggests that even the loyal and slow thinking miner begins to realise it.

THE LATE LORD ROSEBERY

In a letter to The Times Lord Crewe states that he has been asked to collect correspondence and other papers of the late Lord Rosebery and to undertake to write his biography. Lord Crewe appeals for originals or copies of any correspondence of the late Lord Rosebery that has been preserved by his friends, with correspondence should be sent to him at 38 Berkeley square, London, W.1.

STEAMERS COLLIDE.

SIXTY LIVES LOST.

A Lloyd's message from Tokio states that the Japanese steamers Tatsuno Maru and Hsin Kong collided three miles from Shantung Promontory during a fog on Sunday afternoon. The latter vessel sank with the loss of sixty lives. The Tatsuno Maru is proceeding to Kobe with her bows damaged and her forepeak flooded.

A CHALLENGE TO SCIENCE.

AFRICA'S NEEDS AND OPPORTUNITIES.

THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

OPENING SESSION IN CAPETOWN.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
CAPE TOWN, Monday.

A large and distinguished gathering was present in the City Hall this afternoon for the formal opening of the British Association meeting. General Hertzog, the Prime Minister; Dr. Malan, and a number of other distinguished persons were among those present, but many were absent attending the funeral of Dr. Viljoen, to whom Mr. Hofmeyr sympathetically referred in recalling the deaths that had taken place in the ranks of members of the Association during the past year.

The Earl of Athlone, who received a great ovation, in welcoming the members of the Association, dwelt on the importance of scientific research to South Africa. Without this, he said, there would have been little of the rapid development which had taken place in South Africa, and this had been borne in upon him during his tours throughout the country.

His Excellency concluded by heartily welcoming the delegates and expressing the hope that their labours would benefit South Africa. Sir Thomas Holland was then installed as President.

THE PRINCE'S MESSAGE.

Sir Thomas Holland, rising amid prolonged cheers, thanked the members of the Association for the honour, and then read a cable from Sir William Bragg, the late President, expressing hearty appreciation of the generous South African welcome, after which the new President turned to the Earl of Athlone and, on behalf of the Association, acknowledged His Excellency's gracious welcome.

He then read a telegram from the Prince of Wales saying: "I am glad to recall that the invitation to the British Association to meet in South Africa was addressed to me during my Presidency. Express to all members my sincere good wishes and hope for a successful outcome of your deliberations."

Mr. Hofmeyr, President of the South African Association, delivered his presidential address at the opening session, but the presidential address of Sir Thomas Holland, the new President of the British Association, will not be delivered until next week in Johannesburg.

MR. HOFMEYR'S ADDRESS.

Choosing as the subject of his address "Africa and Science," Mr. Hofmeyr began by drawing a contrast between the position of science in South Africa in 1905, the year of the first visit of the British Association, and the position at the present day, showing by a series of striking comparisons the immense progress made in the intervening twenty-four years.

As illustrating the contribution of applied science to South Africa's progress through the construction of irrigation and other engineering works, he mentioned that in 1906 the value of the products of the land exported from South Africa amounted to £5,928,000, while the corresponding figure for 1927 was £27,815,000.

In 1905, too, science in South Africa was largely exotic, the workers being almost exclusively from other lands, and they were only beginning to apply themselves to South African problems. Now in its personnel science in South Africa had become essentially South African, and was applying itself to those problems with enthusiasm and with a South African outlook; but, quoting from an address delivered by General Smuts from the same chair four years ago, Mr. Hofmeyr emphasised that, "so far from the South African viewpoint being parochial in science, it might prove helpful and fruitful in many ways to workers in the fields of scientific research and investigation."

SOUTH AFRICA'S ASPIRATIONS.

"In the period that followed the first visit of the British Association," Mr. Hofmeyr proceeded, "we South-Africanised science in South Africa. Is it too much to hope that in the next we shall Africanise it? We have come to realise that the position of this European civilisation of ours, set upon the verge of this great continent, is a position of unique strategic importance.

"While in the past we thought, as a nation, almost exclusively of our own problems and difficulties, we are now ceasing to limit our horizon by the Limpopo, we are beginning to envisage the task that awaits us beyond our own borders; and in the mind of the nation there is being developed a new conception of South Africa, of a South Africa that consciously and deliberately seeks to play its part on the African continent, not aiming at conquest or domination, but never failing in its readiness to give its intellectual and material resources to aid all who are engaged in the task of developing this great undeveloped area of the earth's surface, which is so full of potentialities for the future welfare of the world.

"If, then, South Africa aspires to leadership in Africa in other branches of activity, why not also in science? If the outlook of the nation is broadening, why should not its scientists also begin to think in continents?"

SCIENCE'S OPPORTUNITIES.

Mr. Hofmeyr next reviewed in some detail the immense opportunities offered in Africa to science in the fields of astronomy, meteorology, geology, medicine, biology, anthropology, philology, etc., the investigation of which would be of importance not to Africa alone.

Africa, too, provided a field, favoured as was no other, for the study of those complicated problems which arise from the control of races of different colours and at diverse stages of civilisation, problems the solution of which would affect or determine the handling of similar problems throughout the world.

"Three great tasks confront science in the conquest of African nature," he continued. "First, science must make Africa safe for the white man to live in. I have spoken of the opportunities which Africa offers for the study of tropical diseases as likely to yield results of significance for science in general, but primarily will those results be of significance for the development of Africa.

"This part of the challenge of Africa is not lightly to be taken up. Africa has taken heavy toll of science. The recent deaths in Nigeria of Stokes, Young and Noguchi, worthy followers in the tradition of Lazear and Myers, are a reaffirmation of the gravity and insistence of that challenge.

PANAMA CANAL LESSON.

"The importance for the cause of civilisation of a successful response to that challenge cannot be illustrated better than by the story of the construction of the Panama Canal. De Lesseps attempted the task and failed. For every cubic yard of earth excavated by him a human life was sacrificed to yellow fever or malaria. It was the successful attack some twenty years later on the death-dealing mosquito under the direction of General Gorgas that made possible the completion of one of the most important engineering enterprises of modern times.

"Secondly, science must combat the foes which have to be contended with in the development of African agriculture. Africa is prodigal indeed in the production of insect and other foes to cattle and to crops. Science is already making an effective response to this part of the challenge; but there is much that remains to be done, and we shall be none the worse for the timely realisation by the politician and the administrator of the contributions which science can make.

"All too often in the past settlement schemes have been undertaken and ended in disaster in areas unhealthy to man, beast or crops, when, if the scientist had first been called in, precautions might have been taken which would have averted the calamity.

THE WORK AHEAD.

"Finally, science must harness the great resources of Africa—and here there are suggested to us all the varied contributions which the engineer can make in the work of development. Has not the Institution of Civil Engineers defined the ideal underlying all engineering activity as 'the art of directing the great sources of power in nature for the use and convenience of man'? Africa offers abundance of opportunities for the realisation of that ideal. It is not by working in isolation that the engineer will realise it, but rather by co-operation with his colleagues in other branches of science, and by the co-relation and co-ordination of the essential data which they must do so much to provide.

"First in the order of engineering development come the civil and mining engineers. Their tasks are the provision of facilities for communication, for health, for the conservation of agricultural assets, for the production of raw material, and for the development of mineral resources.

ELECTRICAL POWER.

"In their train there follow, with the advent of industrial activity, the mechanical and electrical engineers. Their tasks are to make the fullest use of the revolution in ideas of transport, including transport by air, which have resulted from the perfecting of the internal combustion engine, and to secure the maximum advantage possible from cheap production and efficient distribution of electrical power. The day must come, to give a concrete instance, when the Victoria Falls, with their immense water resources, will mean much more for Africa than Niagara to-day means for America.

"Later still there will be called in the services of the chemical engineer, ever engaged in problems of research, to ascertain the most advantageous processes of converting raw materials into manufactured articles. In all these tasks it is the South African engineer who has, under the conditions of an undeveloped land, built up a technique and practice suitable to African requirements, and showing promise of wider applicability, that we may well expect to assume a position of leadership and of inspiration. These are some of the ways in which science can respond to the challenge of Africa.

"A VAST CANVAS."

"The picture which I set out to portray I have now completed. I have tried to suggest something of the magnitude of the rewards which Africa has in store for the scientist who has the enterprise to adventure and the vision to see. I have sought also to be the medium of the challenge presented to Science by Africa's opportunities and needs.

"It is a vast canvas on which I have had to work. On it I have drawn but a few sketchy outlines. Yet I hope that the vision stands out clear. I hope that I have said enough to convey the power of its inspiration. Not least do I hope that you, our visitors, will play a great part, in the time that you will spend with us, in filling in some of the details of the picture, and in quickening and vitalising its message for the scientists of South Africa. It is to them chiefly that it makes its appeal. The development of science in Africa, of Africa by science, that is the promised land that beckons them. I believe that they will not be disobedient to the vision."

A cordial vote of thanks to Mr. Hofmeyr for his address was adopted, after which Mr. Hofmeyr was presented with the South African Medal for Research, founded by the British Association in 1905.

DEGREES FOR DELEGATES.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
PRETORIA, Monday.

The University of South Africa will confer the degree of Doctor of Science at Transvaal University College, Pretoria, on August 1st on the following members of the British Association who are now visiting South Africa:—

Major Elliott, M.C., M.P.

Sir John S. Flett, F.R.S., Director of the Geological Survey of Great Britain.

Sir Robert B. Greig, Chairman of the Department of Agriculture for Scotland.

G. H. F. Nuttall, F.R.S., Professor of Biology, Cambridge University.

Sir John Russell, F.R.S., Director of Royhamsted Experimental Station, Harpenden.

RAIN WELCOME, BUT OF SMALL EFFECT.

MERELY COOLS PARCHED EARTH.

Despite the fact that rain has fallen, at times copiously, for more than twenty-four hours, it must not be supposed that the water shortage has been relieved to an extent worth reckoning, and residents in the Dublin area must continue to conserve their supplies.

An official of the Dublin City Waterworks Department told an Irish Times representative yesterday that the rain that had fallen scarcely wet the ground, which was like a sponge in absorbing the moisture because of the long drought. Beyond the rain that actually fell into the reservoirs, very little water had as yet found its way into them.

To have any effect on the water supplies, this rain would need to continue for at least a week.

From the time when rain began to fall, about 10.30 o'clock on Sunday night, little more than an inch of rain, if that, has fallen in twenty-four hours.

A marked change has taken place in the weather since last week. Sunday was cooler than Saturday, while in Dublin yesterday the temperature had fallen to 58 degrees. Dull weather may last for a day or two.

Rain fell in many places in England and Wales yesterday, and weather experts at the Air Ministry prophesy the breaking up of the heat wave. At Holyhead there were nineteen millimetres of rain, while seven millimetres fell at Liverpool. North Shields had five millimetres and Harrogate four.

CLOUDBURST IN NORTH WALES.

A cloudburst lasting some minutes occurred at Blaenau Festiniog, North Wales, during the afternoon. The water ran down the mountain sides in torrents, sweeping the rabbits along with it, and uprooting small trees and shrubbery. The water in the reservoir at Trawsfynydd increased several inches in a few minutes. Quarrymen proceeding to work at the slate quarries were drenched to the skin. Torrential rain also fell over Merseyside.

TRAFFIC CHAOS.

A NATIONAL EMERGENCY.

FROM BAD TO WORSE.

(By "CIVIS.")

If two or three transport accidents which involved the lives of sixty-two citizens, and permanent injury to one hundred and thirty others, occurred in the Free State within six months, a condition of "national emergency" would be proclaimed by the most indifferent of our politicians and administrators. Yet, such is the public mentality, the same six months' toll of life and limb is paid in weekly and daily instalments while Ministers devote their attention to political abstractions and legislators suspend their leisurely activities for several months. In presenting these startling facts, and demanding that emergency measures should be taken to limit the risks of our highways, the Irish Times has rendered a real national service.

As a reinforcement of that demand it may be helpful briefly to review the events which have led steadily and inevitably to the general conditions of chaos that now prevail in Free State road transport, and to consider some of the more important factors of the problems which are now clamant for solution.

DANGERS OF CONGESTION.

As the statistics of motor accidents published by the Irish Times on July 18th, show, more than two-thirds of the total and serious motor accidents of the last six months occurred in three counties—43 fatal, and 86 "serious," cases in the cities of Dublin and Cork and their surrounding roadways, while only 19 fatal, and 25 serious, cases happened in the other 23 counties collectively. A further analysis would, undoubtedly, show that the great majority of such accidents occurred in the heavily congested streets of Dublin and Cork, and on their connecting arterial roads. In other words, risk increases in some definite and measurable proportion to the congestion of our streets and highways. New wine has been poured into old bottles, and the bottles are bursting with tragic results. Is the root remedy, then, to be found in efforts to reduce the explosive qualities of the wine, or is it not rather to be sought in the provision of new and better containers—in the restriction and repression of motor transport or in the adaptation of our highways to demands which were undreamed of by those who designed them?

In proposing these questions for the consideration of the readers of the Irish Times, the writer has no thought of acquitting the Ministry of Local Government of lack of energy in dealing with the report of the Inter-Departmental Committee on Road Traffic, many of whose recommendations, if acted upon, would already have gone a considerable distance to abate the risks and inconveniences of motor transport. Rather it is to show that in more radical and far-reaching matters the same Ministry—and the Government as a whole—has failed egregiously to grasp and handle the complex of our road and other transport problems.

"GREATER DUBLIN."

It is now five years since the Greater Dublin Commission was appointed, and almost three since its report was handed to the Minister of Local Government. That report dealt specifically with the growth of motor transport as a serious and rapidly developing factor in civic design—as a dynamic which demanded early consideration and radical adaptations of the then existing conditions. Yet the Commission's recommendations have lain in the Ministry's pigeon-holes for several years while Dublin's traffic tangles have daily become more and more inextricable. Comparatively fluid conditions have been allowed to harden into congealed masses of problems. Citizens' lives have been thrown away. If experience and appearances mean anything, another year or more will elapse before the first definite steps can be taken to organise an authority to grapple with the interwoven problems of traffic and town-planning.

DUBLIN'S BRIDGES.

But that is not all. Other things have happened in the interval. While the public eye and ear have been attracted by such minor—though useful—spectacular improvements as changes in the position of tramway tracks in Grafton street and the removal of the Smith O'Brien statue, decisions of great and lasting import to Dublin street traffic have been taken in the relative privacy of parliamentary committees and Government offices. Of such matters quite the most important is the decision to rebuild and widen Butt Bridge (on which preliminary operations have already begun), thus blocking the way for many years to come for any effective plan to relieve the rapidly growing traffic congestion, which menaces the lives and limbs of citizens, and threatens soon to paralyse vehicular traffic itself, at such points as O'Connell Bridge and College Green.

The claim that essential relief may be provided by the new transporter bridge (which, under the terms of the Port and Docks Board Act, is to be built within seven years at a point which is more than a quarter of a mile from Butt Bridge) is purely illusory. Such contrivances elsewhere have proved themselves merely fresh obstacles to motor traffic—a fact which is now recognised by every metropolitan and technical journal in Ireland. Yet these and other issues which lie at the very heart of Dublin's street traffic problem have been determined while the Minister for Local Government—necessarily immersed in the multifarious details of public health and poor law, and the administration of local bodies from Donegal to Waterford—is either helpless or unwilling to consider proposals which have lain for years in his desk.

INTER-DEPARTMENTAL CONFUSION.

These facts force us back once more to inquire why, seven years ago, the whole complex of transport, by road, rail and other means, was parcelled out arbitrarily to several different departments instead of being vested—as it was before the Treaty—in the hands of one responsible department of State. To-day the consequence is that everybody's business is nobody's business. Departments with scattered and confusing functions are satisfied to play battledore-and-shuttlecock with our local and arterial transport problems, with the lives and limbs of our citizens, and with the design of the Free State capital and other cities and towns.

TRAFFIC AND TOWN PLANNING.

In what direction then, if any, lies a possible and practicable way out of the present confusion and chaos? Quite clearly, it would appear, in recognising the fundamental fact that traffic and town-planning problems cannot be disentangled from one another; in realising that motor transport is destined to exercise a dominating influence in re-shaping and re-moulding the organisation of our cities and towns and countrysides; in seeing clearly, before further blunders are made, that a town-planning (or regional-planning) authority which is not also a traffic authority must prove itself soon to be a fresh anachronism—a complication which can only breed further confusion and paralysis. From these considerations, it would seem to follow that Senator Johnson's praiseworthy effort to secure town-planning legislation should be so extended as to embrace definite provisions to deal with transport questions.

The alternative would appear to be a Greater Dublin authority, and a series of traffic boards and separate town-planning bodies—more bureaucracy, more unnecessary expenditure, more cross-purposes, and even greater choas than now exists! Let us, at all events, try to see what it is that we should aim at. We can then think of the best and quickest way to get

WORK FOR 5,000 MEN.

DEVELOPMENTS IN CORK.

FORD'S WORKS EXPANSION.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.
CORK, Monday.

The possibilities of Messrs. Henry Ford and Son's Works at Cork were pointed out by Mr. C. F. Sorenson, a director of all the Ford companies, and Sir Percival Perry, the European managing director of the Ford Motor and Tractor Companies, whom I met this evening.

Mr. Sorenson, who is a close personal friend of Mr. Henry Ford, arrived from America last Wednesday, and motored to Cork from Dublin yesterday.

He paid his second visit to the Marina Works to-day, and, with Sir Percival Perry, was entertained to dinner this evening by Mr. H. A. Pelly, President of the Cork Incorporated Chamber of Commerce.

Sir Percival told me that in the Ford factory they were determined to prove to be a fallacy the theory that Ireland as a manufacturing centre was an uneconomic proposition.

"It is generally accepted," he said, "that as materials had to be imported into this country, and a market then found outside for the manufactured articles, this little island is a place to be avoided by cold-blooded economic manufacturers."

A SUITABLE COUNTRY.

"We believe, however, that this country is ideally suited for the manufacture of certain commodities," added Sir Percival, who pointed out that, in fact, it cost no more to bring raw materials or even coal, which was essential in the production of power, to this country than it did to certain generally accepted industrial centres in Great Britain."

In Cork they had a magnificent port, second to none in the whole of Europe, and all that was required was enterprise and development along the right line.

"I do not believe that Messrs. Fords have skimmed all the cream off your milk," said Sir Percival, "and right alongside our factory we can accommodate vessels of over thirty feet draught at our wharves."

TRACTORS WANTED BY AMERICA.

Sir Percival Perry, who was prominently connected with the Ford Factory at Cork for some years after their establishment, said that the recent establishment of the Marina works as the headquarters for the world for the manufacture of tractors was indicated by Mr. Ford's personal interest in the progress of the country. Not only had he imported plant and machinery in Cork to the value of considerably more than one million pounds, but he had divorced from the United States a readymade trade and a market in America alone requiring 50,000 tractors annually.

"That market is assured," declared Sir Percival Perry. "There is, in fact, an increasing demand, and, although the Cork works have now been turning out tractors for less than six months, we have already exported over £100,000 worth to America."

"That is one altruism of Mr. Ford's, and the factory at Cork is not yet working at full swing. At present they were turning out something less than forty tractors daily, but, even if that output were multiplied by ten, they still had sufficient orders on hand to keep them working at full pressure for six months."

WORK FOR 5,000 MEN.

Apart altogether from the unlimited scope for the expansion of their trade in the world's market, Sir Percival Perry assured me that the present steady demand would afford employment at Cork for 5,000 men.

Mr. Sorenson told me that it was rather early yet to express an opinion regarding Irish workmanship, but said he could not help expressing admiration of the progress that had already been made.

"Mr. Ford is determined and we are determined," he added, "to develop and expand the works at Cork to the fullest extent." He further told me that although a large number of engineers had been sent over from Detroit to assist and advise in the initial stages of the works here they were only lent, and would all return to America in due course.

"They are not coming over here to capture the best positions," he added, "for so far as possible Mr. Ford will continue his present policy of putting Irishmen even in the biggest jobs."

"It should be remembered," continued Mr. Sorenson, "that Fords are not out for cheap labour, which is undoubtedly a ruinous policy in the long run, but we will continue to pay the same rates operating in America."

"That may be unpleasant from the point of view of the manufacturers," he said, "but it is an important fact to be remembered in our effort to build up a huge industry in this country."

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSING BILL.

THE THIRD READING.

FROM OUR PARLIAMENTARY CORRESPONDENT.
WESTMINSTER, Monday.

The House of Commons was not very full this afternoon when the Speaker took the Order Paper, containing no fewer than 113 questions. Very few of these were of outstanding interest. A question addressed by Commander Kenworthy to the Prime Minister with regard to naval shipbuilding—the most important on the paper—was postponed until next Wednesday.

Mr. Arthur Greenwood, Minister of Health, moved the third reading of the Housing Bill, which continues the 1924 subsidy and discontinues the grants made under the 1923 Act. He ridiculed Mr. Neville Chamberlain's suggestion that a reduction in the subsidy tended to lower the cost of houses, and said that the only real element which could reduce the price of houses was a falling off in the demand.

Sir Kingsley Wood asked if subsidies were the good thing that Mr. Greenwood imagined why did he not restore the full subsidy of 1924. The probability was, he said, that the Chancellor of the Exchequer had intervened and decided that the interests of the nation came before the pockets of all kinds of people.

Sir Tudor Walters, who has been connected with housing and town-planning, said that whether subsidies were good or bad they had, in fact, produced the houses, and he considered that the building record of the last few years was a magnificent one. It could hardly be questioned that about one-half of the capital value of the housing subsidy went to the building trade and only one-half for the benefit of the tennant. Apart from the necessity of supplying cheap houses for the working classes, the demand in the agricultural districts had not nearly been met, and he suggested that Mr. Noel Buxton, in conjunction with the Minister of Health, should take in hand the erection of 100,000 houses for farm labourers, at an inclusive rental of 2s. 6d. a week.

Miss E. Rathbone, who sits for the English Universities as an independent member, made a maiden speech, in the course of which she said that it was no good building houses if their cost was beyond the paying capacity of people. The Government were supposed to represent the "under dog," but there were vast numbers of underpaid workers who could not afford the present rents. She went on to suggest rent rebates in respect of children on the same principle as relief was given in the Income Tax Acts.

The bill was read a third time, and was sent to the House of Lords, where it received a formal first reading.

there. The master aim surely should be the prevention rather than the cure of congestion. When the patient reaches the hospital or the asylum every available means to secure his cure and comfort must be supplied; but our first duty surely is to make such institutions unnecessary. It is equally our duty to prevent congestion which calls for special regulations and restrictions. Therein lies the real field for the vision and activity of the town-planner.

John Kelly (57), married, an ex-British soldier, of Queen street, Dublin, fell last night from a window of his house into the backyard, a distance of about thirty feet. He was taken in the city ambulance to the Richmond Hospital, where he died a few minutes later from head injuries.

FREE FIGHTS IN CLARE.

REPUBLICAN MEETING ABANDONED.

Exciting scenes and lively exchanges marked a Republican meeting which was held in Cooraclare last Sunday. Free fights took place, and Civic Guards were roughly handled while endeavouring to separate the combatants. The meeting broke up in disorder.

The principal speakers were Miss Mary MacSwiney and Mr. Sean Buckley, Cork.

Mr. Buckley addressed the meeting at considerable length on the question of land annuities, and referred to the men who fought and died for the Republic. Five or six young men then attempted to get on the platform, and a scuffle took place between Mr. Buckley and one of the men, which resulted in both falling off the platform. After they had regained the platform, one of them said that it was they who had fought for Ireland and cleared the British out of the country. They were Clare men, and West Clare at that. The people who were now cheering for Miss MacSwiney were asleep then under the beds.

Miss MacSwiney referred to T. J. Ryan, who was kept a prisoner in his house by the "agents of England." Shouts followed of "Where was T. J. Ryan when the work had to be done?—like the rest, asleep."

At this stage of the proceedings one of the young men asked Mr. Sean Buckley did he know the late Detective Officer Tigh Sullivan, who was blown to pieces at Tullycrine. Mr. Buckley replied that he did, and fought beside him.

Asked was he a good man, he replied that he was a very good man. Further asked did he condemn his brutal murder, Mr. Buckley replied that he could not answer that question.

The heckler, turning to Miss MacSwiney, asked did she know the deceased detective or did she approve of his murder, to which she replied that she knew nothing at all about him, and further said that the young men on the platform were Lloyd George's agents, who wanted to bring England back.

A Voice—To hell with Lloyd George; it's yourself and your gang who requires England back.

She was then forced to the rear of the platform, the disturbers singing "The more we are together the happier we will be," amid boohs and cheers.

One of them invited any Clareman to address the meeting and he would receive all the order that he required.

Another scene was caused by a woman making frantic efforts to reach the platform. She spoke with an English accent and declared that she had resided in England for the past seventeen years and was a supporter of Miss MacSwiney.

A Voice—"Go back to where you came from; you are not wanted in this country." (Cheers.)

Eventually she reached the platform, calling all around her "Dirty dogs."

Miss MacSwiney made several futile efforts to gain a hearing. She then appealed to the Guards to remove some men.

A Voice—"Are you starting to recognise the uniform, Mary? You are going back of your policy." (Cheers and boohs.)

The excitement was now tense, and free fights were indulged in, and some Guards on duty got a rough handling trying to separate the combatants.

The meeting broke up in disorder.

BRITISH MEDICAL ASSOCIATION.

COMMITTEE'S REPORT ON PSYCHO-ANALYSIS.

ALLEGED DANGERS DISCUSSED.

The British Medical Association, which met at Manchester yesterday, considered a report presented by Dr. R. Langdon-Down (Teddington) on behalf of the Special Committee of Investigation, which had sat for two and a half years under his chairmanship. The report set forth the most important criticisms of the theory and method of psycho-analysis, together with the answers of the President of the British Analytical Society. It was impossible, the report added, for the Committee to make any general pronouncement. Time, experience and discussion must be the tests.

An amendment was moved by Dr. L. A. Parry (Isle of Wight), regretting that more emphasis had not been paid on "the very real and serious dangers, especially to children and adolescents, of any system of mental therapy which postulates the sexual basis as the sole or preponderating cause of neuroses and pathological mental conditions."

Dr. C. E. Douglas (St. Andrews, Fife), said that psycho-analysis represented no new discovery. If Freud had asked any Roman Catholic priest in the last thousand years, he would have been told that in the confessional something like ninety per cent. of confessions made dealt with sexual subjects. It was "the old story," and the only new thing that Freud had brought up was that it was also to be met with in childhood. The subject of the sub-conscious mind had been long known to them. William James had dealt with it in his "Varieties of Religious Experience." The only difference was that in James the threshold of the subliminal consciousness was a clean threshold, but in Freud it was a threshold muddied by dirty little footmarks. The gravamen of the charge against psycho-analysis was that it was a bad thing morally to direct patients thoughts to sexual matters. Could they, in their general practice as doctors, take the responsibility of trusting their patients to such a revolting method of treatment?

Dr. Manson, of Warrington, said that Dr. Parry's amendment appealed to prejudice "If this theory of the sexual basis of the neuroses is true," he said, "whether we like it or not, we have to accept it." They should avoid condemning it merely on grounds of repugnance.

"HERESY HUNT."

Dr. C. M. Stevenson (Cambridge) opposed the amendment as part of a "heresy hunt." He said that heresy hunts had done harm to the people who conducted them.

Dr. J. T. Dewart, of Manchester, said:—"We are out to protect certain members of the public, our patients—those patients who are treated by untrained psycho-analysts." He knew personally of people suffering from "this so-called psycho-analysis," from treatment by people working under that flag. "We cannot go contrary to the public interest. If there are any of our patients whose moral life is being impaired by those individuals, call them what you will, there is a public danger." "All that Dr. Parry's motion asks is that we should warn the public that in this type of work, carried out as at present, there is a grave moral danger," he added.

Dr. F. H. Bodman, of Bristol, said that that was not a court of morals or manners, but a scientific court. He thought that there was a body of scientific evidence to support both the principles and the application of psycho-analytical technique, and he had not come across a juster or more lucid explanation of the question than the report presented. Matters revealed by psycho-analysis were often painful and repugnant, but they should not be shirked on that account

NOT CHARLATANS.

Dr. Peter MacDonald, of York, said that two things had clearly emerged from the Committee's investigations. One was that the psycho-analysts, in the true and proper sense, were not charlatans. The other was that proof of certain dangers from psycho-analysis seemed to disappear when they were probed. The question of the Œdipus complex had been probed more than anything else. He begged the Conference not to commit itself on a scientific subject to such a statement as Dr. Parry's, that they did not know, and knew that they did not know.

Dr. E. K. Le Fleming, of Wimborne, Dorset, expressed the conviction that psycho-analysts, as defined in the Committee's memorandum, were genuine workers, proceeding honestly on lines which they believed to be honest. He was not satisfied that the allegations brought by some members of the Association had been proved. The medical profession must keep an open mind on the subject.

Defending the Committee's report, Dr. Langdon Down said that nothing could be more unwise than for the Committee to lay down a dogma.

Replying to an observation by Dr. D. Erlow, of Cheltenham, that no evidence of actual cases of harm had been brought before the Committee, Dr. Parry asked: "Suppose I hand to a small boy a tin of gunpowder and a match. Must I produce his charred body before I can prove that there is the danger of accident?"

Dr. Parry's amendment was defeated by a large majority, and the Committee's report was accepted, with the addition of an expression of thanks for the Committee's services.

AN IDEAL MEDICAL SERVICE.

Dealing with a report on encroachments on the sphere of private practice, Dr. Fothergill (Brighton) said that the Council contemplated setting up a special committee to consider what, given the present state of affairs, was an ideal medical service for Great Britain. A report would be presented next July on a model scheme.

Dr. Fothergill moved that the Association's Parliamentary Election Fund should be wound-up, or, alternatively, that the trustees of the fund should be empowered to apply it to other cognate purposes.

Sir Richard Luce said that a political fund was one of the strongest arguments that could be used in condemning them as a trade union.

Several members pleaded for the maintenance of a modest fund to help medical men to make their contributions to the counsils of the nation on matters in which they had special knowledge.

The motion was defeated and the meeting adjourned until to-day.

U.S. MARKETS.

STOCKS CLOSE IRREGULAR.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.)
NEW YORK, Monday.

Stocks opened firm, but, with the chief speculative interests shifting from stocks to grains, the tendency of the Stock market was mainly downward, and selling was influenced by the belief that the technical reaction was in order. The renewed weakness in Motors and heavy profit-taking in Rails contrasted with the strength of some Utilities and Electrical issues. Outside the sharp rise in grain, the day's business news consisted of a series of favourable earnings statements. Several conservative commission houses, however, urged extreme caution in making new commitments, which undoubtedly induced heavy selling. General Motors sagged below 67, reflecting speculative disappointment at the June sales, but Auburn Auto soared 10 points. Copper issues reacted, with heavy offerings of Anaconda Copper and Kennecott Copper. Merger rumours provided a background for an advance in Utilities, and General Electric rose 10, North American Co., Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, and Detroit Edison 3 to 6 points. Allied Chemical, however, dropped 18 points, and Public Service of New Jersey, Johns-Manville, United States Steel, Union Pacific, New York Central, and Hudson River and Dupont 3 to 5 points. The closing was irregular. Government Bonds firm; Railroad Bonds irregular. The day's sales totalled 3,682,000 shares.

Money on call closed easy at 7 per cent. bid and 7½ per cent. asked. Business throughout the day was concluded at 7 per cent. Sterling exchange steady. Silver ⅛c. down at 52⅜.

POSITION IN THE COAL INDUSTRY.

STATEMENT IN BRITISH PARLIAMENT TO-DAY.

COALOWNERS' VISIT TO DOWNING STREET.

Yesterday the annual conference of the Miners' Federation was opened at Blackpool, and simultaneously a deputation of coalowners was received at Downing street by the Prime Minister and other members of the Government. Reduction of working hours and negotiation of a national agreement will be the outstanding issues before the Miners' Conference; the debate on the hours' question will take place to-day in private.

At the conclusion of the owners' representatives' visit to Downing street the following official statement was issued:—"The Prime Minister, Mr. J. H. Thomas, Mr. William Graham, Miss Margaret Bondfield and Mr. Ben Turner met representatives of the coalowners at No. 10 Downing street this morning. The position in the coal industry was further discussed. A statement will be made in Parliament to-morrow."

NATIONALISATION.

Mr. Herbert Smith, President of the Miners' Federation, at the annual Conference at Blackpool, speaking in his opening address on the question of the reorganisation of the industry, said that he strongly objected to the isolated district schemes of the owners. It was only by acting on national lines that they could hope to salve the industry. A national scheme was not their ultimate goal. It was merely a preliminary canter towards the international regulation of the industry. Their ultimate object was nationalisation of the mines, minerals and by-products. "No national agreement can be complete," he said, "unless it contains the principles laid down by this Federation; and I would specially particularise the inclusion in the ascertainments of the returns from coke ovens, by-products and other undertakings.

"We are looking forward with the greatest confidence to a reduction in the hours of labour in our industry during the present year," Mr. Smith added.

TRADE UNIONS ACT.

A Scottish resolution was discussed, calling on the Government to repeal the Trade Unions Act. Mr. Joseph Jones said that Yorkshire was not in favour of the repeal of the Act. They would support an amendment of the Act and the removal of the repressive clauses inserted by the late Government. The word "repeal" was changed to "amend," and in that form the resolution was carried.

Nottingham carried a resolution instructing the Executive to take the necessary steps to induce the Government to bring in an early measure to provide adequate pensions at a reduced age.

DUBLIN DOCTOR'S DEATH IN ENGLAND.

The death of Dr. Patrick O'Doherty, Medical Superintendent of Sligo Mental Hospital, took place at his brother-in-law's residence at West Wickham, Kent, after a lingering illness. A Dublin man by birth, the late Dr. O'Doherty studied medicine in the Royal University of Ireland, and was appointed assistant medical superintendent in the Tyrone and Fermanagh Asylum, Omagh, in 1902, soon after qualifying as a doctor. He held the appointment up to 1922, when he was appointed to the Sligo position, and latterly, owing to the condition of his health, had been granted leave and had gone to England in the hope that his condition would improve. Mr. Alexander E. Donnelly, M.P., Omagh, is a brother-in-law, and Dr. O'Doherty is survived by his widow, four sons and one daughter. One of his sons is studying medicine in Dublin.

At the funeral, which took place yesterday to Killyclogher, Omagh, there was a large attendance of the general public and the leading professional and business men of the North-West, including representatives of the principal public bodies of Sligo town and county, and Mr. John O'Hanrahan, District Justice, County Donegal. Requiem Mass was celebrated at Killyclogher by the Rev. J. H. McKenna, in the presence of a large congregation.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Monday.

WHEAT opened firm and 3c. higher, and continued to advance on reports that the weather was turning very hot in North Dakota, coupled with a bullish private estimate giving the condition in Minnesota, South Dakota, and Montana around 70 per cent., and that of North Dakota below 50 per cent. A bullish report by Mr. Snow stating that rains are reducing the winter wheat production by 50 million bushels, and estimating that the spring wheat production would be 200 millions or less, further assisted the advance, the market closing strong and 7c. to 7½c. dearer.

THE SHANNON SCHEME SLUICE GATES OPENED.

THE SHANNON SCHEME.—Yesterday, for the first time, the waters of the Shannon were admitted to the head race canal, which links the intake at Parteen with the giant power station at Ardnacrusha, nearly eight miles away. The water is here shown boiling up from beneath the centre of the three gates, each of which, weighing eighty-five tons, is more than twenty-five yards in width.

Sure because it soaks!

Shaving lather must soak the beard to soften it. Colgate lather consists of millions of tiny bubbles which hold the water right up against the hairs. Thus Colgate's soaks the stiffness out of them so that the razor can't pull; saturates them at the root so that the shave is clean; drenches them wringing wet so that the toughest beard is tamed.

NORTH DUBLIN FLOWER SHOW.

The annual show organised by the North Dublin Horticultural Society will be held on Saturday next in the grounds of St. Patrick's Training College, Drumcondra, commencing at 2.30. During the afternoon the Artane Band will perform, and an orchestra has also been engaged. In addition to the usual attractions of a flower show, visitors will have an opportunity of studying the life history of the various insect pests which cause injury to fruit and flowers, through the medium of the interesting collection of moths, butterflies, etc., kindly placed at the disposal of the Council by the Department of Agriculture.

OUTSIDER WINS CHIEF EVENT.

POOR DISPLAY OF ELLANVALE.

STASIARCH BEATEN TO THIRD PLACE.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

LEICESTER, Monday Night.

The racing here this afternoon was of a very mild nature; for the going was desperately hard—this same old tale has to be told every day now—and fields were small. They were a poor lot in the first selling race, a two-year-old event, and Gordon Richards brought off a 10 to 1 chance on Vivienne, a filly by The Vizier, whom Captain Kirk trains.

There is not much of her, but she ran on stoutly to win in a good finish by a short head from Golden Carp. Not much stock, however, was taken of the performance; for Felix Leach, junior, was able to buy her after the race for the modest sum of 110 guineas.

The Earl of Westmorland produced one of his jumpers, Roi des Aulnes, to win the July Selling Plate by a length from Desiree, and he bought him in after the race for 240 guineas.

Then came the principal race of the day, the Oadby Breeders' Plate, for which there were only four runners, Ellanvale, who was third in the 1,000 Guineas to the French-trained filly Taj Mah, being an odds-on chance. She was beaten when she had gone a mile, and finished last of all. Her performance does not say much for the form of the English classic fillies of this season.

OUTSIDER WINS.

The race was won by the extreme outsider of the party, Mr. James de Rothschild's Bold Stroke, a filly who had only run once this season, but had won as a two-year-old. She dwelt at the start, but challenged the pacemaker, Busy Sue, inside the distance and beat her easily by two lengths.

Bred by Mr. Donald Fraser, and a daughter of Maranon, the dam of Marvex, by Simon Pure, Bold Stroke won a race last year for Sir Abe Bailey, and at the sale of his horses Mr. de Rothschild went to 3,400 guineas to buy her.

TRIBUTE TO SILVER LYRE.

The French filly, Hot Bun, whom M. Jacques Wittouck owns, paid a tribute to Silver Lyre, who beat her at Chepstow when she started favourite for the Prince of Wales's Plate, which she won by a length and a half and three lengths from Galette and the much-fancied Glaneur.

For the Belvoir Castle Handicap Lord Howard de Walden's Stasiarch was favourite, but he was beaten some distance from home and finished two lengths behind Rialto Bridge, who in a fine finish was beaten a short head by Barlin's Helvetic.

In the last race of the day Skiff, the daughter of Scatwell, who had won the Plantation Stakes at the first July meeting at Newmarket, was a better favourite than the Hurry On colt, Palm Off, but she was no match for him, and he beat her by three-parts of a length, Bag o' Tricks finishing third.

SELECTIONS.

I do not see much possibility of bright racing here to-morrow. The Leicestershire Oaks is likely to cut up badly, and I favour the chance of Mrs. Edmond Harmsworth's STORY TELLER, who has no penalties, and put up a useful performance in the Welsh Oaks, in which she divided Borrowed Plum and Almondale.

I like the chance of ALEMBIC in the Appleby Handicap and of MARLBOROUGH in the Wistow Hall Plate.

At Edinburgh HALALIE should win the Summer Handicap and GOLDEN WHEAT the Glenfuir Plate.

SPORTING GOSSIP

Conyngham Club Committee.

The next meeting of the Conyngham Club Committee will be held at the offices, 8 South Anne street, Dublin, on Saturday, 3rd August, at 10.30 a.m.

Life Belt for the Stud.

Life Belt, a four years old chestnut filly by Hurry On out of Cinna, has finished her racing career and has been sent to the stud. Her dam, Cinna, won the One Thousand Guineas.

La Fayette Out of Stewards' Cup.

Mr. P. Wertheimer's La Fayette, who was struck out of the Stewards' Cup at 9 a.m. yesterday, is a son of the famous Epinard, who won the race in 1923. Mr. Wertheimer has also scratched Mirbat from the Goodwood Stakes.

The "Tote" at Leicester.

Mr. Stanley Ford, the Clerk of the Course at Leicester, states that it is hoped to have the totalisator in operation at the Leicester meeting which begins on September 23.

Knightsbridge Sale.

At Messrs. Tattersall's sale at Knightsbridge yesterday, Milburn, bay gelding (1917) by Machakos out of Celia, was sold to Colonel B. Cripps for 120 guineas; and Anchorite, brown gelding by Amadis out of Thicket, was hold to Mr. P. Pendarves for 100 guineas.

Golden Ale's Running.

After the Craigmillar Selling Welter Handicap at Edinburgh yesterday, Mr. Renton requested the Stewards to inquire into the running of Golden Ale at Ayr, Bogside, and again in yesterday's race. After hearing Mr. Renton and Adley, who also rode the horse at Bogside, they expressed themselves as quite satisfied with the explanation.

The Irish Oaks.

In the Irish Oaks at the Curragh to-morrow Silver Blue will be ridden by Joseph Canty and Bower of Roses by M. Barrett. Soloptic is reported to be a doubtful starter.

Star Eagle.

Star Eagle will not be sent to Liverpool for the Liverpool Cup. He runs for His Majesty's Plate at the Curragh on Thursday next.

S.P. BOOKMAKERS ALARMED.

Much perturbation in starting price offices has been caused owing to the unprecedented generosity of the racecourse bookmakers' return for places on the Eclipse Stakes. Since the introduction of the tote most starting price layers have been accepting commissions for places only, clients having the option of their account being conducted by the tote or S.P. returns. This method of wagering has already become exceedingly popular, and large sums are involved. The prices for places have become as important as the winning odds.

In an interview with a Press Association representative, Mr. James Sutters, of the Victoria Club, said:—"Assuming that every horse in the Eclipse Stakes had been laid for places, to take out equal amounts from the books at the returned prices the layer would have had to add upwards of 25 per cent. to his takings to meet his liabilities. To pay £300 he would only receive just over £237. In any race where odds are laid on the favourite there can be no such thing in fairness as proportionate odds for places, and the greater the odds laid on, the greater is the discrepancy. There should, in my opinion, be special place betting in such cases."

SPECIAL SELECTIONS FOR TO-DAY.

Daily Sketch:—Double—Maryland Point and Golden Wheat.

Daily Mirror:—Double — Picoline (nap) and Alembic.

THE CURRAGH.

TO-DAY'S SELECTIONS.

Now that the badly wanted rain has come, the outlook for the Curragh meeting is much brighter, and we may expect to find stronger fields turning out than seemed probable a couple of days ago. In connection with the big event of the week, the Irish Oaks, which figures on to-morrow's programme, there is at the moment some doubt as to whether Soloptic will be saddled. Her preparation has been interrupted owing to the hard state of the ground, and she did not acquit herself quite satisfactorily in a winding-up gallop last Saturday. However, she would hardly require to be at the top of her form to win, as there will be no cross-Channel opposition. The principal race to-day is the Drogheda Memorial Stakes, which may be accounted for by Arch Lady. Selections are appended:

Scurry Plate—Miss Marlhill, or, if absent, Alison.
Loughbrown Stakes—Harum Scarum.
July Plate—Shipmate.
Drogheda Memorial Stakes—Arch Lady.
Stand Plate—Soldanel.
Summer Plate—Fishpool or Sylvia Lloyd.

CURRAGH TRAINING NOTES.

THE CURRAGH, Monday.

A heavy rainstorm, which set in overnight, continued throughout the morning, and teams were not sent out up to a late hour.

On Saturday the Irish Oaks candidate, Soloptic, arrived from Maryborough and was sent one mile, accompanied by Soldanel.

Prudent Pat, who is engaged in the Galway Hurdle Race, had a good school over hurdles, accompanied by Jurat.

Mr. S. B. Joel's recent purchase, Barnstep, is in good fettle for the Probationers' Stakes on Wednesday.

SELECTIONS FOR THE CURRAGH (TUESDAY):—
Scurry Plate—ALISON.
Loughbrown Plate—GENERAL O'MALLEY or ATHMOY.
July Plate—SHIPMATE.
Drogheda Memorial Stakes—ARCH LADY.
Stand Plate—SOLDANEL.
Summer Plate—MULLIGATAWNY.

LEICESTER:

STORY TELLER FOR THE OAKS.

SELECTIONS.

It is not anticipated that there will be more than half a dozen runners for the Leicestershire Oaks, which is the chief attraction at the concluding stage of the Leicester meeting to-day. Last week's Newmarket winner, Point Duty, is not likely to be seen out, but if Sister Anne is sent on from Newmarket this morning Gilpin's charge may have to be reckoned with. Belle Mere, who will have derived considerable benefit as the result of her race at headquarters last week, when she finished third to Glastonbury and Aroostook, will be the mount of Jack Leach, and the combination is one that will make a strong appeal. This is the race likely to be selected for Decree Nisi, but I give a somehwat confident vote in favour of Story Teller, who should go one better than when narrowly beaten by Borrowed Plume in the Welsh Oaks at the recent Chepstow meeting.

From a speculative point of view chief interest will centre in the Appleby Plate, which has a very open appearance, and the winner will not be easy to find. Herbert Smyth can saddle a well-fancied candidate in Maryland Point, who will be running over his best distance, but I would rather take sides with Protractor, who beat all except the useful Ensoleillee at Nottingham. Pineadular will probably find the company here a trifle too good, but one for whom I have the greatest respect is Alembic. This gelding proved that he is now approaching his best by running Tetranella to a length last week, and I think that whatever beats him will be returned the winner.

The pick of those engaged in the Tower Maiden Plate are not likely to be seen out, and in taking Wish Maiden and Velvetex as a pair likely to supply the winner, a slight preference is given to the former.

Sutton Selling—Picoline.
Evington Selling—Tuffan.
Appleby Plate—Alembic.
Leicestershire Oaks—Story Teller.
Tower Maiden Plate—Wish Maiden.
Wistow Hall Plate—Myron.

EDINBURGH.

TO-DAY'S SELECTIONS.

The Scottish Summer Circuit will be brought to a close at Edinburgh to-day, where sport, if not very informative, should prove interesting. Fields promise to show to much better advantage than on the opening afternoon, and there will be no lack of runners for the principal event, the Summer Handicap Plate, which will bring into opposition some good second-rate middle-distance performers. The pick of the Northern-trained candidates may prove to be Fox River, but the recent running of Eheu Fugaces points to the undeniable chance held by this four-year-old.

The principal race for juveniles is the Glenfuir Plate, and in this Golden Wheat should give Harry Wragg a winning ride.

SMITH V. LINDRUM.

SYDNEY, Monday.

Play in the time-limit match between Walter Lindrum and Willie Smith to-day went slightly in favour of the English player, who reduced his deficit from 659 to 567. At the afternoon session play was very even, Smith, with breaks of 236, 239 and 339 (unfinished), aggregating 1,008, while Lindrum whose chief efforts were 610 and 145, totalled 1,001. At the resumption Smith carried his incomplete break to 517, and made good all-round runs of 368 and 239. At one time he got within 40 of his rival's total, but he then struck a bad patch, and failed appreciably to increase his score in six visits to the table. Lindrum, relying chiefly on nursery cannons and top of the table methods, had breaks of 563 and 160. Closing scores:—W. Lindrum, 14,047; Smith (in play), 13,480.

WATER POLO.

GOOD WINS FOR CLONTARF AND SANDYCOVE.

Three matches—two in the Senior League and one in the Junior—were played last night in wet weather. Sandycove meeting Dublin University in both divisions at Blackrock, while Clontarf the North side club entertained Pembroke in the senior section. Pembroke 2nd were unable to raise a team in the Junior League, Clontarf 2nd being awarded a walk-over.

Perhaps, the keenest interest was centred in the junior game between Dublin University 2nd and Sandycove 2nd, as on the result the championship of the division depended to a large extent. A victory to Dublin University, who have not lost a game in the tournament, would have placed them in an unassailable position in the table. The game, however, went in favour of Sandycove, who won by two goals to nil. The Fortyfooters were about value for their victory, but University lost a couple of good chances through over-eagerness. The game was very keenly contested, the marking being too close to permit of much combination, and the exhibition was somewhat scrappy.

Sandycove won their senior game by five goals to one, University, as in the previous match between the sides, falling away after a good opening. Sandycove were the stronger forward, O'Brien scoring three goals from sharp angle, as did Horlacher, who gave a good display. At back, Judd was always prominent. For University, T. D. Wallace was the best forward, and J. P. Wallace and T. H. Deckrell were in goal, but the latter has played better.

At Clontarf the home team again defeated Pembroke by two goals. Pembroke, in view of their inexperience, did well to hold their opponents to a couple of scores. The match, however was a poor one, selfishness amongst the Clontarf forwards being a conspicuous feature. Brady, Roche, and O'Reilly were the best of the Northsiders, while Ellerker and Stafford played well for Pembroke.

Junior League—Sandycove 2nd 2 goals (Brady); Dublin University 2nd nil.

Sandycove 2nd—J. Flanagan (captain); M. Monks and W. Fitzhugh; C. P. Kenna, D. Healy, H. Powell, M. Brady.

Dublin University 2nd—R. C. Ellis; D. R. W. Good and R. W. Jackson (captain); J. A. W. McKee; W. M. E. Anderson, F. B. Rea, J. McD. Hamill.

Referee—Mr. H. F. Brennan.

Senior League—Sandycove 5 goals (O'Brien 2, Horlacher 2, Higginbotham), Dublin University 1 goal (T. D. Wallace).

Sandycove—W. Fagan; W. J. McCormack and N. F. Judd; G. C. Higginbotham (captain); F. Horlacher, L. O'Brien, J. Allen.

Dublin University—J. B. Montgomery; J. P. Wallace and P. W. P. Wallace; T. H. Deckrell; O. Hennessy, T. D. Wallace (captain), G. F. Bestall.

Referee—Mr. H. F. Brennan.

Clontarf—T. Lavery; J. Nunin, O. S. Roche (captain), J. S. Brady; T. A. O'Reilly, G. V. Glass, W. L. Maguire.

Pembroke—D. Stafford; H. W. Stephenson, D. O'Connor; H. G. Elerker (captain); D. Rudd, W. Thompson, M. Horan.

IRELAND V. CATAMARANS.

RAIN PREVENTS PLAY.

The Catamarans were to have opened their Irish tour yesterday in the College Park with a three-day fixture against Ireland, but owing to heavy and continuous rain no play was possible. The wicket, which was covered over Sunday night was protected yesterday, so that should the weather be fine this morning a start will be made at 11 o'clock and play will go on until 6.30.

Except for the changes already announced the Irish side is the same, while the Catamarans will play as published.

On Thursday the tourists will play an XI. selected by Mr. Toones, Castle Park School, Dalkey. Phœnix will be played on Friday and Saturday, and the tour will conclude with a match against Mr. W. P. Hone's Irish XI. on Monday and Tuesday next.

SCOTLAND V. SOUTH AFRICANS.

The South Africans beat Scotland at Perth yesterday by an innings and five runs. A splendid stand was made by Taylor and Van Der Merwe, who were together for an hour, and added 100 runs to the tourists' total. Taylor's 125 included one 6 and fourteen 4's. The Scottish second innings was largely a repetition of the first. With three hours to bat they lost the first three wickets quickly for 32, and though Alexander and Innes improved matters the fourth wicket fell at 65. Alexander mistiming a ball from Smith. After this the Scots fared badly, and in just over two hours were all out for 144. Quinn took five Scottish wickets for 33. Score:—

Y.M.C.A. v. Pembroke 3rd, at 6.30 p.m.—The following to be on ground at 6.15:—Balbirnie, Coard, Olhaussen, S. Plunkett, P. Plunkett, G. McEndoo, Oliffee, G. Boucher, Balmer, Rice, Farrell, Sterling, Walsh.

YACHTING.

THE WATER WAGS.

Despite the rain which fell persistently, and the very light N.N.W. breeze which was blowing—it was little more than an air—the Wags carried through a race last evening, six boats starting in a club handicap over the port course at 6.54 p.m.

Going away Pansy led Moosmie, Coquette, Phyllis, Mollie, Blue Bird through the line. At the close of the round the order was Coquette, Phyllis, Moosmie, Mollie, Blue Bird, Pansy. Phyllis was leading at the end of the next round, and Blue Bird now was last. Coquette recovered the lead at the guardship buoy, and the finish was timed:—

Mr. H. R. Newland was officer of the day.

LAUNCH OF SONIA.

The little yawl yacht Sonia, which was launched at Ringsend the other evening, arrived yesterday at Kingstown. Quite a handsome little ship she is, and a regular multum in parvo as regards internal accommodation. She is fitted with aux motor power, of course, and possesses the fashionable canoe stern. Her length, 34 feet over all and about 28 feet waterline, her roominess is remarkable. Her owner, Mr. W. Blood-Smyth, intends living on board, and he has a 7ft. cabin beautifully fitted with ample head room, and forward of that a sleeping cabin, with fixed berth and fitted water basin, etc. Forward of that is the fo'castle. Aft of the main cabin is the "galley" on one side, and washing stand on the other of the companion way. The Sonia is amateur built by the owner with the assistance of Mr. J. B. Kearney, who is responsible, we believe, for her lines.

IN BELFAST LOUGH.

The Royal Ulster Yacht Club's River Class race was won last Saturday by Lackagh (Messrs. F. and H. Jefferson), and the Dancing Class by Mazurka (Mr. F. M. Magee).

Three events were decided at Cultra, under the auspices of the Royal North of Ireland Yacht Club. The Island Class race was won by Mr. A. Wallace's Kaila, the Lake Class by Mr. J. Hamilton's Gerry, and the Fairy Class by Messrs. Hume and Orr's Maimoune.

The Waverley Class race, under the auspices of the Co. Antrim Yacht Club, competed for at Whitehead, was won by Messrs. J. and T. Smith's Peveril. Ivanhoe (Mr. S. Campbell) and Erne (Mr. R. Pollock) were the winners of the two races sailed at Ballyholme Bay on Saturday.

INTERNATIONAL RACE AT DEAUVILLE.

There was a very light south-easterly breeze blowing when the second contest of the series of races for the One Ton Cup was held yesterday at Deauville by the yachts of the Six-metre Class. Bissbi, the Swedish representative, belonging to Dr. Erik Akerlund, again repeated her success of the previous day. Jean, representing Great Britain, and owned by Major Laurence C. Coates, came in second, whilst Normand III., the French defender, belonging to Mons. Jacques Draeger, gave up. This is the Swedish representative's second victory, and should she prove victorious on one more occasion the cup will go to Sweden.

CO. DUBLIN CHAMPIONSHIPS.

RAIN CAUSES POSTPONEMENT.

Owing to the inclement weather there was no play in the Co. Dublin championships at Carrickmines yesterday. Given fine weather for the remainder of the week it will still be possible to carry through the various events in good time, provided that all competitors assist by arriving punctually.

MISS HELEN WILLS SAILS FOR HOME.

LAST VISIT TO WIMBLEDON?

ENGLAND'S TENNIS HOPES.

Miss Helen Wills, the lawn tennis champion, sailed for America on last Saturday on the Cunard liner Aquitania.

"I am sorry to leave England," she said to a Press Association reporter, "especially as this may be the last time that I shall come over here. I have made no plans for lawn tennis after I am married, and although I shall always play tennis, I may not come to Wimbledon." It was obvious that she preferred to talk of anything but the game which she adorns, and her eyes shone with happiness when she was asked about her own drawings, which had been on exhibition in the West End. She replied that she had sold half of them.

Miss Wills was pressed to give her opinions of the leading English lawn tennis players, but she smiled and shook her head. "I don't want to say anything about any player," she said, "but I do think that Mr. H. W. Austin will become one of the great players of the world when he has improved his service and his overhead shots.

"Betty Nuthall, too, has plenty of time to get to the top of the game. She is young yet—eighteen, isn't she?—so she has a great deal of time to improve."

Miss Wills is travelling to America with the British Wightman Cup team—Mrs. B. C. Covell (captain), Mrs. M. Watson, Mrs. L. R. C. Michell, Mrs. D. C. Shepherd Barron and Miss Betty Nuthall.

ENGLISH 'VARSITIES' WIN.

At Newport, Rhode Island, last Saturday, the Oxford and Cambridge lawn tennis team beat Harvard and Yale by 15 matches to 6, and thus win the Prentice Challenge Cup for the second time. The British side won all nine of the doubles matches owing to their greatly superior team work, and Harvard and Yale were only able to gain victories in six of the twelve singles played.
